National security in danger, says FBI chief

'Must sacrifice liberties in face of threats'

MONTREAL (AP) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley said Saturday Americans must sacrifice "a small measure of our liberties to preserve the great bulk of them" because of a growing threat to national security.

Kelley, addressing a luncheon audience at the American Bar Association's annual meeting, added that "if investigative agencies charged with national security responsibilities are so fettered as to be ineffective — then we shall surely finish last in the world arena."

A leading figure in last year's congressional impeachment proceedings against former President Richard M. Nixon quickly challenged Kelley, saying his concept represents "the "philopsophy of Watergate."

Albert E. Jenner, former minority counsel to the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment panel, said, "Obviously to Mr. Kelley the ends justify the means irrespective of what the Constitution of this country guarantees. This was the philosophy of Watergate, the cover up and abuses of powers ..."

Kelley's speech and Jenner's rejoinder came one year to the day after Nixon left the office of the presidency.

Watergate special prosecutor Leon M. Jaworski who is attending the convention declined to comment on Kelley's talk, saying he wanted to study the text.

Kelley said because the FBI has been accused of "engaging in mail openings, promiscuity in using wiretaps, committing burglaries and a general disregard for individual rights," he fears new guidelines will interfere with the agency's national security function.

"I feel strongly that the emphasis should not be a negative one with an obsession for restraints," he said. "Instead we should be concerned with the development of the capabilities needed to bring about success in the field of national security."

He added that not only the number of persons "engaged in activities antagonistic to our country ... increased in the past few years, but their proficiency has greatly increased." He did not make clear in his speech if the threat was internal or from abroad, but he told newsmen later he was referring, in part, to increased Soviet intelligence in the United States.

Kelley said the FBI has made mistakes but "Today, after 35 years of hot and cold war, development of sophisticated intelligence programs, emergence of our world leadership role, and responsibilities never before contemplated, we are compelled to undergo the first serious examinations of what techniques are essential to preserve our country."

Jenner, who did not attend the luncheon but later studied a transcript of the address, said, "I see nothing in this speech where M. Kelley defines what was the national security; but what I do see is that Mr. Kelley is seeking license for FBI activity."

He added, "The impeachmet investigation and actions of the House Judiciary Committee clearly established that there must be intervention by the courts with respect to warrantless searches, wiretaps and invasions of homes and offices."

Jenner said Kelley wants the FBI to have the right to judge "what is in the so-called national interest and under this guise use whatever methods, regardless of the Constitution. I absolutely disagree with his statement that we must give up some rights in the interests of national security, because when you surrender even a small measure of your liberties you then accept the inevitable destruction of what remains."

Israel, Egypt near pact on withdrawal?

By The Associated Press

Two high-ranking Israeli officials will go to Washington next week to work out the wording of the political aspects of an interim peace agreement with Egypt, the Israeli state radio said Saturday.

This suggested that the Israelis and Egyptians were near agreement on the substance of the political part of a pact for an Israeli withdrawal in the Sinai Desert.

In Cairo, President Anwar Sadat assured visiting U.S. lawmakers that Egypt is "determined to pursue all roads leading to a just and durable peace" in the Middle East.

Sadat later met with Mexican Foreign Minister Emilio Rabasa, who handed him a message believed connected with the Middle East conflict from Mexican President Luis Echeverria who is currently visiting Israel.

Sadat also met with the U.S. charge d'affaires in Cairo, Frank Maestrone. No details were immediately available on either meeting.

Observers think that Echeverria is trying to bridge the gap between the Egyptian and Israeli proposals for reaching a second disengagement agreement in Sinai.

Israeli Foreign Ministry sources confirmed that Mordechai Gazit, director-geneal of the prime minister's office, and the Foreign Ministry's legal adviser, Meir Rozen, will meet the U.S. negotiators in Washington.

The sources declined to be specific on the points of accord. Jerusalem officials have said in the past that the Israelis are seeking a commitment from the Egyptians to reduce economic and political warfare against the Jewish state and to undertake a promise of "nonuse of force" in settling future disagreements between the two sides.

Also under negotiation are the strategic aspects of the agreement, especially the extent of Israeli withdrawal in the desert peninsula.

The Israeli ambassador to Washington, Simcha Dinitz, is to receive clarifications Sunday on Egypt's latest proposals on an Israeli withdrawal before Israel formulates its reply, the Israeli radio said.

A third aspect of the negotiations, concerning relations between Israel and the United States, also appeared to be progressing, and the Israeli radio reported that an Israeli delegation was to arrive in Washington Monday to discuss the resumption of American aid held up during the U.S. reassessment of its Middle East policy.

FBI making analysis

Bloodstains in car came from fish, says O'Brien

WEST MEMPHIS, Ark. (AP) — Charles "Chuckie" O'Brien said Saturday that bloodstains found on the seat of a car he drove the day ex-Teamsters boss Jimmy Hoffa disappeared were from a 40-pound salmon.

"If everybody would get over this Ellery Queen stuff and get serious about finding the man who's missing, we'd all be better off," O'Brien said, alluding to the crime fiction writer.

Early Saturday, the FBI impounded the car — a late model Mercury owned by the son of a reputed underworld figure that Hoffa said he was going to meet the day he disappeared — and sources said technicians would determine if the blood was human.

O'Brien, an international organizer for the union who served as Hoffa's bodyguard, refused to discuss what else he did July 31, the day Hoffa vanished from a restaurant parking lot in Detroit.

"I gave my word and I never broke my word in my life ... Jimmy taught me that," said O'Brien, the son of a Teamster killed on a picket line and raised by Hoffa since the age of 3.

O'Brien has refused to discuss most aspects of the disappeance, saying he promised his attorneys and the FBI after agents interviewed him last week.

"It was blood," O'Brien said in an interview at the home of his new wife, Brenda. "It was blood from a 40-pound salmon . . . I got blood on me and I dripped it on the floor in my office."

O'Brien said he borrowed the 1975 Mercury belonging to Joe Giacalone, son of reputed underworld figure Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone, because his 1975 Lincoln Continental was in West Memphis.

"I borrow his car all the time," he said. "My car was down here — Brenda had it — and (Giacalone's) office was just 10 minutes away."

O'Brien said the fish was a gift from a Seattle Teamsters official to Teamsters Vice President Robert Holmes.

O'Brien refused to say whether he thinks Hoffa is alive or dead.

"I have an opinion ... But I'm not going to say because they are very private feelings," he said. "I'm hoping he's alive — I'm praying he's alive."

Agents seized the 1975 Mercury at an apartment complex in Detroit where neighbors said the vehicle belonged to Joe Giacalone, son of Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone, who Hoffa said he was going to meet July 31 when he disappeared.

Meanwhile, current Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons said he didn't know where Hoffa is and refused to speculate on his fate. However, he rejected speculation that union politics or gangland figures were involved in the Hoffa's disappearance.

Meanwhile, current Teamsters Union President Frank E. Fitzsimmons said he doesn't know where Hoffa is.

He also said he did not believe the underworld was involved in the disappearance and that there was no power struggle underway in the Teamsters, the nation's largest single union.

Fitzsimmons, a longtime confidant of Hoffa's and now his archrival, said, "I have no idea where Hoffa is." Asked if he thinks the 62-year-old former union president is dead, he said, "I don't want to comment on that."

Firemen gaining on Hemet blaze

HEMET (AP) — Fire fighters gained the upper hand late Saturday on a brush fire that charred 4,500 acres in the San Jacinto Mountains and caused damage estimated at $1.7 million, predicting the blaze would be fully contained today.

"Things are looking real good," said a spokesman for the California Division of Forestry. "We'll release about 700 fire fighters this evening, leaving about 300 on the lines through the night."

The blaze raced through extremely dense brush south of here and advanced to within two miles of the town of Anza before "a good southwest wind turned it around and it burned right back into the burn. It just kind of laid down and went to sleep," the spokesman said.

The forestry division placed a tentative price tag of about $1.7 million on the blaze, including $1 million for fighting the fire, the cost of a $500,000 helicopter destroyed when it made a forced landing in the path of the flames, a home worth $150,000 and timber and watershed valued at nearly $40,000.

Many of the estimated 700 persons evacuated from their homes in the village of Thomas Mountain and other small communities returned to their homes as the fire danger receded.

The fire burned two homes and one unidentified structure, the spokesman said.

5 youths held in school break-in

Five young burglary suspects were captured by Pomona police Saturday after they broke into several classrooms at Garey High School.

Officers said some damage was inflicted by the youths in one room, before they were nabbed about 3 p.m. Police were responding to a silent alarm at the school.

Three of the youths were from Pomona, and two from Los Angeles. They ranged in age from 14 to 16.

L.A. smog commutes to Palm Springs

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The wealthy may drive 100 miles from Los Angeles to get away from it all, but one urban undesirable — smog — follows them even here.

The brown haze that clouds Los Angeles during the day arrives in this desert resort town as golfers and tennis players are sitting down to a predinner drink.

You can see it come rolling in through San Gorgonio Pass — it's like a funnel," said a long-time resident. "When I first came here 20 years ago, we didn't know what smog was."

The resort city of some 20,000 year-round residents, is a haven for the wealthy and for entertainment personalities. Frank Sinatra and Bob Hope have homes there, as does Walter Annenberg, former ambassador to Great Britain.

The federal government said last week that many rural areas can have serious smog problems caused by a previously underestimated tendency of pollutants to spread out from urban areas.

Recent studies in which smog particles were "tagged" and their windblown course tracked by airplane have shown that Los Angeles' smog is a long-distance commuter.

"You used to be able to look across the valley and see the mountains real sharp all the time," said Fred Razzar, director of the Tennis Club and a 12-year Palm Springs resident. "Now, you can count on your fingers the days in the summer when you can see the peaks."

"We don't have as heavy a smog problem as a lot of places, but we have more days of it than almost any place in California," said Herbert E. Toor, leader of an antipollution group, Desert People United.

"We persuaded the oil companies to use Palm Springs as a testing area for methods of controlling gasoline vapor from filling stations, Toor said.

"And," he added, "there are a lot of people like myself who move out to the coast during the summer, to avoid the smog as well as the heat."

"I'll tell you, it's a darn good thing the worst of it is in the summer when we don't have much business anyway," said Razzar, the Tennis Club head. "If it was this bad in the winter, people would be looking for some other place to go."

A spokesman for the city's Convention and Visitors Bureau said, "As far as we've been able to get a feeling for it, people here have accepted what smog there is as a fact of life. Things just aren't the way they used to be 20 years ago and there's not much you can do about it."

ROYALTY OF THE RAILS

"Adventurer Jan," 18, from Rockwell City, Iaowa, and John "Hadrock Kid" Mislen, 70, who claims no permanent address, were named the Queen and King, respoectively, of the 42nd annual Hobo Convention in Britt, Iowa, Saturday. More than 20 hoboes vied for the title.

Ashland oil doles totaled more than million dollars

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ashland Oil Inc. doled out more than $1.1 million in illegal campaign contributions in this country and in payments to foreign officials, including $150,000 to the president of Gabon, it was disclosed Saturday.

The campaigns of current members of the U.S. Senate and House as well as former President Richard Nixon and many Kentucky politicians received part of the $724,000 in illegal political donations admitted by the company in documents filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

This filing was the first time the SEC forced a corporation to identify the recipients of such contributions and payments. Corporations are prohibited from contributing to federal campaigns.

Ashland said it paid Albert Bernard Bongo, president of Gabon, where it has oil drilling rights, $150,000 and also paid two other officials $52,000.

Officials in Libya, Nigeria and the Dominican Republic received other Ashland payments, including about $2,500 spent on the wedding of Omar Shali, a Libyan national who was an adviser to King Idris.

Among American politicans receiving illegal contributions from the company was former Rep. Michael J. Kirwan, a Democrat from Ohio, who got $60,000.

Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., received $50,000 that the Ashland documents indicated Mills was going to donate to other Democratic candidates.

Among present and former senators, the late Allen J. Ellender, a Louisiana Democrat, received $10,000 in 1969 and another $10,000 shortly before his death in 1972.

Other Senate candidates, all now incumbents, who received funds included Indiana Democrats Vance Hartke, $3,500, and Birch Bayh, $3,000, both in 1968; Milton Young, R-N.D., $3,500, also in 1968; Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., three contributions totaling $8,000 in 1970; and James Eastland, D-Miss., Carl Curtis, R-Neb., John Sparkman, D-Ala., and J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., $5,000 each in 1972.

The contributions were often given in the name of individual company officers which did not explicitly indicate the actual source of the funds.

Contributions also were made in those years to a number of losing Senate candidates as well as for other races.

Motorcycle rider dies in crash; one injured

An 18-year-old Pomona man died Friday when the motorcycle on which he was a passenger struck a dump truck in Diamond Bar. Another 18-year-old was injured.

Highway Patrol Officer Jim Silveira said the accident occurred on Diamond Bar Boulevard at the Pomona Freeway.

Killed was Donald Allen Miner, of 1269 W. Fourth St., Pomona. He suffered massive head injuries.

Injured was John M. Olson, of 24017 Sunset Crossing, Diamond Bar. He suffered a fractured pelvis and internal injuries and was reported in guarded condition in the intensive care unit at San Dimas Community Hospital.

Driver of the truck was Everett Earl McDonald, 52, of West Covina. The motorcycle, driven by Olson, struck the right rear tire of the truck and both youths were ejected.

Miher was pronounced dead at the hospital about one hour following the accident.

4 men rob Pomona 7-11 market

Four armed robbers walked into a 7-11 Market in Pomona Saturday, forced a clerk to lie on the floor and took an unknown amount of cash, police said.

Officers reported one suspect gave the clerk, Michael Pescador, 19, $1 for a bag of potato chips and then pulled a .22 caliber revolver. He rifled the cash drawer as three other gunmen stood by. They then fled the market at 625 S. Dudley St., by car.

Man arrested on drunk charge after car crash

A 21-year-old Ontario man was booked on a charge of felony drunk driving Saturday morning after the car he was driving hit a parked car which was forced into a second parked car in the 1500 block of Campus Drive, Ontario.

Ruben Trancosa, 1320 Highland Court, was booked into West End jail at 6:20 a.m. after officers responding to an accident call at 4:45 a.m. discovered Trancosa and his passenger Anthony Jiminez, 1010 Golden Rain St., Upland, standing by one of the cars.

The car Trancosa had been driving was facing north in a southbound lane of Campus Drive.

Two other vehicles were facing westbound.

According to officers, Trancosa told them his alignment went out and he lost control of the vehicle.

Jiminez was treated at the hospital for a broken nose.

Officers reported detecting a strong odor of alcohol on Trancosa's breath and discovered containers of beer in the car.

Year-old tot struck by car

A 1-year-old girl was slightly injured Saturday when she was knocked down by a car being backed out of a driveway on College Avenue in Pomona.

Rhonda Lynn Leach of 1526 N. College Ave. was hit by a car driven by Andrew Larson, 85, of 1514 College Ave.

Police said Larson was backing out of his garage at 10 a.m. and started to cross the sidewalk when his car struck the girl.

The child was treated for a cut on the head and other bruises at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and released.

WEPEC ready to support censure or recall moves

The executive committee of the West End Public Employes Coalition (WEPEC) announced Saturday that it was prepared to support recall or censure action against local government officials in the event member organizations initiated such actions.

WEPEC membership includes, firemen, policemen, city employes, teachers and other public employes in the West End communities of Upland, Ontario, Montclair Chino, Fontana and Alta Loma.

Cathy Kinley, secretary of WEPEC, said that the organization would support recall actions if asked to do so by one or more of the cities' or school districts' employe groups.

She said that no groups had initiated such action to date.

WEPEC was formed about 18 months ago and meets on the fourth Monday of each month at the California Teacher's Association Headquarters in Ontario.

Ford urged to end tobacco supports

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Ralph Nader group urged President Ford Saturday to end the government's $60 million annual tobacco-growng subsidy and spend the money instead of a nationwide antismoking campaign.

Putting small tobacco farmers nd cigarette industry employes out of work "is of little consequence" compared to the 250,000 deaths attribued to cigarette smoking each year, he Health Research Group said.

"We urge you to lead the wa in ending the unconscionable U.S. upport to todacco iroduction," the onsumer organization said in a lette to Ford.

"Federal programs to encourage tobacco growing contradict ther federal programs from prevetion and control of environmentall induced disease," the Nader roup said.

The Tobacco Institute, a Washington-based trade asociation, countered that federa subsidies actually limit tobacco roduction.

"If there were not control on how much tobacco is grown, oviously there would be more tobcco. If there were more tobacco it would cost less. Cheaper tobacco products would be more widely available," a spokesman said.

"The failure of people who make these proposals to perceive that, is a measure of their intelligence," he said.

The Health Research Group also released a 21-page report in support of its claim that federal tobacco supports, dating back to the Depression, are kept alive by "the parochial and short-range views of a handful of tobacco state congressmen."

"Our tobacco support program is subsidizing disease and death in the name of the small tobacco farmer," the report said. "Yet the program is not even providing efficiently well for the small farmer."

Because federal supports are based on the amount of marketable tobacco leaf produced, farmers in the lower 40 per cent of the income scale receive only 13.2 per cent of the benefits, it said.

The consumer organization suggested that some of the $60 million be set aside during the next several years to help small tobacco farmers be reeducated, make the transition to other crops, and obtain food stamps and federal health care.

A FATAL SCENE

A small station wagon in which the driver was killed is framed by the window of a sedan. The two vehicles collided at the intersection of Grand Avenue and Diamond Bar Boulevard. The impact knocked both about 150 feet. The station wagon overturned.

Accident claims life of Valinda woman

A motorist killed early Friday when her small station wagon collided with a sedan in Diamond Bar has been identified as a Valinda woman.

She is Laurella Lucille Swacker, 43, of 16718 Francisquita St., who was pronounced dead on her arrival at the Pomona Valley Community Hospital. The Los Angeles County coroner's office withheld her identity pending notification of her husband and son.

Mrs. Swacker was driving east on Grand Avenue when her vehicle hit the side of a sedan going south on Diamond Bar Boulevard, said highway patrolmen.

The second driver, Howard Allen Knipple, 39, of 23720 Palomino Drive, Diamond Bar, was admitted to the hospital's intensive care unit with a head injury. His condition is listed as fair.

The impact knocked the station wagon on its top and caused it to skid about 100 feet on Diamond Bar Boulevard. It came to a stop near the middle of the roadway.

The sedan also continued for about 150 feet before stopping against a curb. It didn't overturn. Neither driver was ejected.

Witnesses reported seeing the station wagon traveling about 45 miles an hour on Grand before entering the intersection, said officers. The station wagon hit the sedan on the passenger side.

Solar greenhouse: saving fuel for cold weather

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

A search is underway to design a greenhouse that will derive most of its heat from solar energy to supplement conventional fuel for use in cold climate areas.

The study is aimed at minimizing use of oil, natural gas or coal in heating greenhouses. It will be directed by Prof. Donald R. Price, agricultural engineer at the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell University. Cornell has received a $35,000 grant from the Energy Research and Development Administration.

"The greenhouse industry in northern states is feeling a severe crunch from high fuel costs," Price said.

First, available solar energy collection devices and energy storage systems will be checked to determine those best suited for greenhouses. Included will be a study of the feasibility of using surplus energy from solar greenhouses to heat the homes of greenhouse operators.

An experimental solar house is being built at the College of Architecture, then a demonstration unit will be developed.

Price said the solar collection device might have to be located adjacent to the greenhouse to avoid blocking sunlight needed for plant growth. Energy will have to be stored for cloudy days. One common method is to heat water. Another is to heat a bed of fist-size rocks. Price cited use of hydrated salts as a promising heat storage medium, explaining that by melting the material with heat, the energy is stored in the liquefied salts.

"If the storage system is large enough," Price said, "the stored energy can be recovered for several days."

Ways to insulate the greenhouse at night to conserve heat and removing the insulation during the day to utilize the solar energy must be considered. One suggestion was insulation panels that could be used to cover the greenhouse at night, hinged for retraction to utilize sunlight.

Another proposal was a greenhouse with double layers of glass panels all around so that the entire structure would have hollow walls and roof. Polystyrene plastic pellets, widely used in bean bag chairs, could be blown into the space between the glass panels for insulation, then vacuumed out during sunny periods.

Elm disease enters state

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The dreaded Dutch Elm disease has finally reached California, say state plant pathologists.

They reported Wednesday that the fungus has been verified in a grove of 15 infected elms near Kenwood in Sonoma County north of San Francisco Bay.

Planos aprobado para centro civico de Chino

El desarrollo del Centro Civico de Chino avanzo esta semana, cuando el Consejo de Supervisores del Condado de San Bernardino aprobo los planos y costos calculados preliminares para continuar con la segunda fase.

El Consejo tambien autorizo al arquitecto para que proceda con los planes finales y especificaciones, los cuales deberan ser tambien aprobados por la Municipalidad de Chino.

La segunda fase proyectada incluira la relocacion subterranea de los cables electricos y telefonicos, instalacion de aceras; parqueos de autos, patios, luces, cesped y sistemas de irrigacion, y remover las calles antiguas, esquinas y aceras.

El costo se calcula en $427,360, pagando una mitad la ciudad y la otra mitad el condado, dijo el Supervisor Sr. Robert Townsend.

Debido al tamano del proyecto, los directores del mismo han divido el trabajo en dos fases. La primera incluye la excavacion de los cimientos para el ayuntamiento y estacion de policia, relocacion de cables y excavacion para el edificio de calefaccion y aire acondicionado.

El centro civico es un proyecto conjunto de la ciudad y ei condado y envuelve 11 acres encuadrado entre las avenidas Central y Chino y las calles Sixth y D.

El condado proyecta construir una estructura de 46,000 pies cuadrados para domiciliar varias agencias condales, incluyendo dos Cortes municipales. La ciudad se propone construir el edificio del ayuntamiento y la estacion de policia.

Los concejales de la ciudad de Chino pospusieron la aprobacion de un proyectado plano para la construccion de un nuevo grupo de casas, despues que el proyectista protesto de tener que pagar la cuenta por las mejoras de la avenida San Antonio.

El concejo pidio al personal municipal que negocie una "solucion razonable", despues que Paul E. Griffin Jr. dijo que no era "equitativo" que el pagara $5,400, total de las mejoras de la calle a Pomona Freeway.

Presupuesto escolar adoptado

Despues de vanos esfuerzos hechos por el miembro, Gene Whitlock para recortar un aumento en los impuestos, el Directorio escolar de Pomona adopto en la noche del martes por una votacion de 3 a 1 un presupuesto general de $32,289,932 para el curso de 1975-76, que sobrepasa todos los anteriores.

Propone un aumento de 94 centavos por cada $100 del valor fijado a las propiedades, y deja $1,733,222 en tres cuentas de reserva.

Muestra un balance inicial de $3,337,043-sobrante de 1974-75-e incluye 8.5 por ciento del aumento del sueldo concedido a los empleados.

Whitlock califico la completa recaudacion de los 94 centavos de aumento en los impuestos "una estafa innecesaria", votando en contra del presupuesto. "Analizando el asunto en perspectiva, veo $3 millones en reserva al finalizar el curso escolar. Por lo tanto, yo propongo una reduccion de 25 centavos en los impuestos aumentados, una reduccion de $500,000 en las reservas, para dar a los contribuyentes un alibio", dijo el Sr. Whitlock. Su proposicion murio al no haber quien le secundara.

El miembro Ken Pine se abstuvo de votar el presupuesto, explicando que desde el "punto de vista fiscal y de negocio," el estaba de acuerdo con que era deseable una reserva grande. Pero, dijo, "cuando nosotros fuimos a los contribuyentes en mayo pedimos una cierta cantidad de dinero. No pedimos mas. Es ahora optativo del Directorio Escolar retener la credibilidad con los votantes. No deberiamos desestimar la memoria del contribuyente. Nos corresponde a nosotros vigilar nuestros propios fondos.

"Mi posicion", dijo la miembro del Directorio Sra. Mary Montes, "es la de que el dinero se necesita. Creo que servimos mejor a nuestra comunidad si utilizamos el dinero en superar el sistema educacional. Si, muchos de nuestra gente son pobres, pero yo se como la gente pobre siente acerca de sus hijos".

Ella presento la mocion para adoptar el presupuesto. La mocion fue secundada por C. Allen Braswell, quien urgio al Directorio a "poner credibilidad en nuestras reservas, asi no tenemos que operar en una base en crisis."

El tercer voto favorable fue emitido por el presidente del Directorio Escolar Sr. Don Donnelly, quien sostuvo que los contribuyentes habian tendio un alibio porque el Directorio legalmente pudo haber elevado a $1.31 por cada cien del valor fijado, 94 centavos aprobados por los electores, 27 centavos autorizado por el estado y 10 centavos en la forma de impuestos permisibles por servicios comunales.

Peace officers hope to turn tables

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Peace officers all over California, tired of being targets of what they call nuisance suits and legal potshots, are getting ready to go on the offensive.

They're adopting an "affirmative action" program, in the words of one of their trade associations.

"This means we'll be doing the suing for a change," says Bill Bean, president of the 18,000-member Peace Officers Research Association of California (PORAC).

PORAC represents about 230 associations of fulltime law enforcement officers, mostly in police and sheriff's departments, Bean said. But he specified that it represents only officers — not the chiefs, sheriffs or the governmental bodies which employ them.

PORAC is expected to formally adopt the "affirmative action" program at a meeting today in Sacramento.

In precise terms, Bean said in a recent interview, "affirmative action" means PORAC will be filing selected legal actions, such as defamation or malicious prosecution suits, against persons who have deliberately pursued unfounded claims or lawsuits against members.

The San Diego County Deputy Sheriffs' Association has already adopted a policy of suing any individual who assaults, abuses or defames a deputy.

The president of the San Diego association, Willis H. Fusaro, says over 200 deputies were injured last year in what he called "citizen brutality."

PORAC has for several years had a defense program. Under this, members are represented by counsel against any civil, criminal or departmental action brought against them as a result of the course and scope of their employment.

But Bean said PORAC's legal fund is now considered healthy enough to permit offensive action when it would benefit all members.

"For example, if an officer gets beaten, we'll sue," he said. "Or when certain radical papers identify officers by name and call them brutal or whatever — we're going after those people."

"We think it will cause a tremendous uplift in morale," Bean said.

"It will be done in a very selective basis. We're not going out capriciously, carelessly or with reckless abandon. We're going out to win a few points," he said.

Bean said the troubles started 10 years ago with the free speech movement in Berkeley. He said 12 or 13 Alameda County deputies were indicted by the district attorney, "and we started getting random indictments across the state, usually connected with making an arrest, or for excessive use of force."

The trend grew, said Bean.

"On rare occasions, there are valid reasons to question police action. But 9 out of 10 times, the charges are found to be unfounded," he said.

I.U. geologists 'dig' their work

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Two Indiana University geologists are trying to find out what life was like in Indiana some 400 million years ago, when the region was covered by salt seas.

Their findings may influence the development of a proposed $31 million reservoir near Columbus.

Prof. Gary Lane, a paleontologist, and graduate student Gary Ausich of Galva, Ill., are scraping and chipping away at rocks at the site of the proposed Clifty Creek Reservoir.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is paying for the study under a one-year-old federal law that says the government must pay for salvage and review of any significant scientific, prehistorical, historical or archaeological data that might be destroyed because of a federally funded or licensed project.

Lane and Ausich are interested in Waldron shale, considered by geologists to be one of the best fossil-bearing rock strains in the United States. A large segment of the shale will be submerged when the reservoir is built.

The shale is named after the town of Waldron in

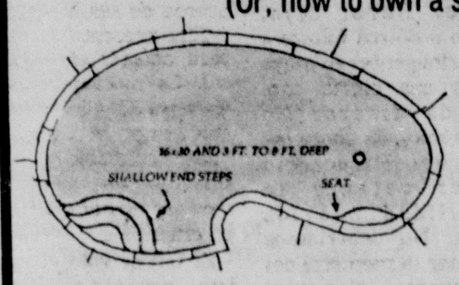
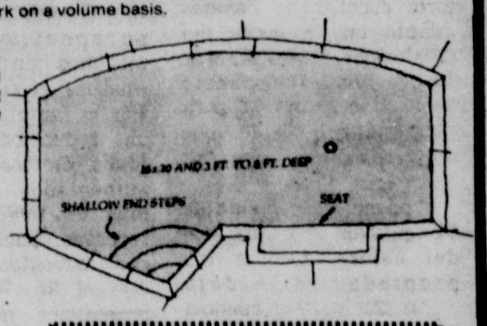
INTRODUCING OUR "INFLATION FIGHTERS."
(Or, how to own a swimming pool without taking a bath)



With the rising costs of today, and practically everything increasing in cost monthly, you've probably felt that a good swimming pool is out of reach or at least a few years of saving away.

Because we understand, California Pools introduces two complete pools which we call our "Inflation Fighters." It wasn't easy doing this, a lot of arrangements had to be made, and it could only work on a volume basis.

These pools were designed to fight inflation without giving up the best in service and the very best in price.



The specifications are as follows: Pool size: 16x30 ft., 80 perimeter ft., 380 sq. ft., 3 ft. to 8 ft. deep. Engineered plans and permits, excavation and dirt removal (access 7 ft.) non-corrosive plumbing, steel-reinforced Gunite construction, filtering system (10 ft. max. from pool), 1 h.p. bronze pump, shallow end steps, deep end swimout, automatic skimmer, complete pool plastering, 500 watt light, 6 in. waterline tile trim, with custom coping edge around pool water line, filter, cleaning tools, and start-up service upon completion.

If you would like to know the exact cost, and exactly how we can do all of this for so little money, call us and we'll tell you, or fill in the coupon below.

Pickford movies slated

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The nation's Bicentennial may signal the return to movie theaters of America's sweetheart, Mary Pickford.

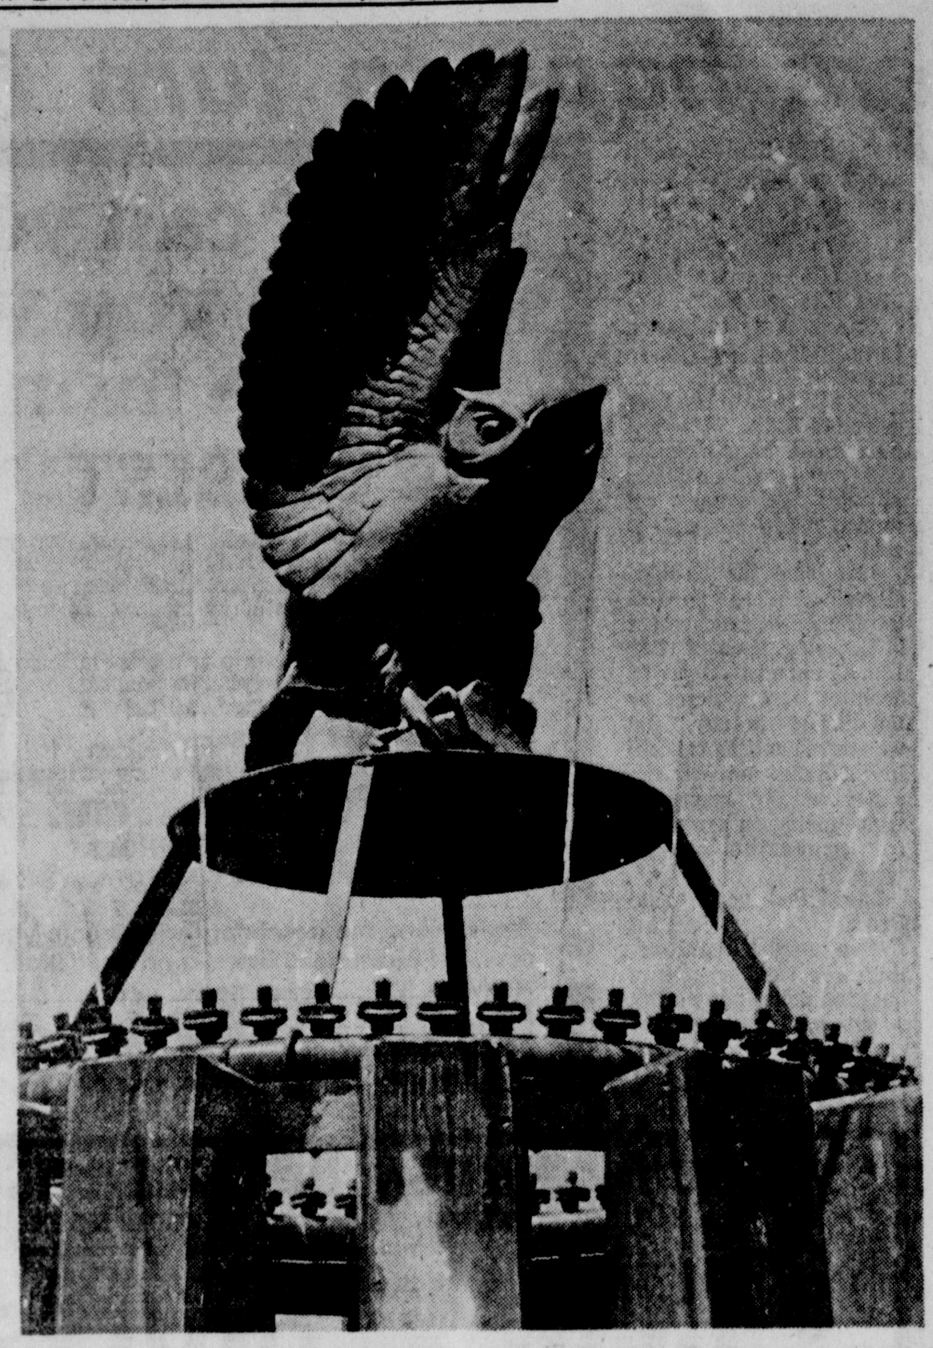
Matty Kemp, who manages the silent-screen star's films, says nine of her films could be released in this country in 1976.

"We first wanted to try the package in Eruope, where Mary is still well remembered," said Kemp. "The results have been excellent. The films have been showing in theaters and on television in Germany, Spain, England and Italy, and I just concluded a deal for Sweden. Now I think we're ready for the United States."

The films, which have been provided with new musical scores include "Little Lord Fauntleroy," "Pollyanna," "Sparrows," "Little Annie Rooney" and "The Taming of the Shrew," a talkie and the only movie she made with husband, Douglas Fairbanks.

Miss Pickford, 82, remains secluded in her family mansion. "Some days she is spunky, some days not so spunky," said Kemp. "She doesn't get out at all; she likes her Pickfair. Her only exercise is walking around the estate."

Having more than one husband is referred to as polyandry.



OWL EYED — This 3½-foot clay owl, the mascot of Citrus College, has been installed on the fountain at the center of the campus as a gift from the Class of 1975. It was sculptured by Debbie Engle of Glendora, a student at the college. The young artist studies with nationally known sculptor, Betty Davenport Ford of Claremont.

Artist to show acrylics

Robert Uecker, Arcadia artist and teacher, will demonstrate the use of acrylics in the oil style at a meeting of the Associated Artists at the Ontario Public Library at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Uecker received his degree in fine arts and magazine illustration from the Chouinard Art Institute, Los Angeles, and has taught at Pasadena City College for 20 years. He is in demand as a visiting instructor and demonstrator throughout the Southwest.

Uecker has received critical acclaim at exhibits in Los Angeles, San Francisco, New York, Paris, London, Munich, Tokyo and Mexico City. He conducts traveling workshops throughout Southern California, and demonstrates techniques with transparent watercolor and acrylics for art associations and clubs.

JACK V. BOOCH, director of fellowship and renewal at the Claremont United Church of Christ, Congregational, has been named Outstanding Distinguished Alumnus for 1974-75 by Lewis and Clark College, Oregon. He was cited for his contributions in theater, television, university work and church ministry. He recently directed "Fiddler on the Roof" at the Sacramento Music Circus, and his production of "Showboat," starring Ann Blythe, is playing there now. He plans to do "1776" at the church next month.

THROUGH THE SPECTRUM — Cal State Los Angeles will offer a new course, "Guitar Ensemble," this fall. Prerequisite: the ability to read music for classical guitar . . . the prestigious Russian art exhibit, "From the Land of the Scythians," opened last week at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art. In expectation of great throngs, the museum will be open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. . . . the Los Angeles Ballet will perform at the ABC Entertainment Center, Los Angeles, at 8:15 tonight.

Orchestra open to community

Valley musicians whose talents have "grown rusty" from lack of use are invited to join the Citrus College Community Symphony Orchestra.

The orchestra will be formed in a class designed especially for instrumentalists who have played in high school or college but are now out of practice. Anthony R. Desiderio of the music department will conduct the class.

The orchestra will give one or two concerts during the semester. The class, offering two units of college credit, will be held from 6:30 to 9:30 Tuesday evenings beginning Sept. 16.

Information on the orchestra can be obtained at 599-5773.

Almanac

Today is Sunday, August 10, the 222nd day of 1975. There are 143 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, the Japanese offered to surrender in World War II if the Emperor would be permitted to keep his throne.

On this date:

In 1821, Missouri became the 24th state.

In 1845, the U.S. Naval Academy was established at Annapolis, Md.

In 1846, Congress created the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

In 1914, France declared war on Austria-Hungary at the start of World War I.

In 1967, the people of Gibraltar voted to retain their link with Britain rather than return to Spanish sovereignty.

Ten years ago: Blacks were registering to vote in heavy numbers under provisions of the new Federal voting rights bill.

Five years ago: Despite opposition from conservationists and public officials, the U.S. Army began moving a deadly cargo of obsolete nerve gas from railroad depots in Kentucky and Alabama to North Carolina's coast for burial in the Atlantic.

One year ago: Portugal made public a two-year blueprint for the granting of independence to her African territory of Angola.

Today's birthdays: Singer Eddie Fisher is 47. Singer Jimmy Dean also is 47. Former movie star Norma Shearer is 71.

Thought for today: Only the educated are free — Aristotle, Greek philosopher, 384-322 B.C.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, the British general, John Burgoyne, wrote in a letter to England that the position of the besieged British in Boston was both precarious and desperate.

PSA gets OK to up fares

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Pacific Southwest Airlines has been granted a $2.4 million fare increase by the state Public Utilities Commission.

The PUC granted the airline a 2 per cent boost in fares Wednesday to compensate for rising fuel costs.

Geologists 'dig' work at Indiana southern Indiana. Lane said it provides a diverse, abundant and beautifully preserved assemblage of 400-million-year-old fossils.

One group of fossils — trilobites or extinct three-lobed, segmented marine animals — can bring in as much as $20 or $30 to fossil collectors, he said.

But Lane and Ausich aren't interested in fossil collections.

"Our study goes far beyond the 'gee-whiz, isn't that a pretty trilobite' attitude," he said. "We are interested in fossils as they represent a community of animals. We hope to reconstruct how these animals lived together in that period."

The fossils come from the Silurian Period, a geologic age 420 million years ago. Lane says virtually all of Indiana and much of the Midwest was covered by inland salt oceans. There were only very primitive fish and no land animal life at that time, he added.

Ausich already has made a preliminary trip to the 42 - square - mile site in Bartholomew and Decatur counties. And Lane says he's cleaning up and categorizing the material he has found.

The two are the only scientists currently involved in the survey. And Lane said they are using only hammers and chisels to knock the fossils out of the rock.

The proposed reservoir would require an estimated 3,000 acres. However, before it can be built, the corps of engineers will need an environmental impact statement on the reservoir's effect on the area.

Ausich's report on the fossil findings, due Jan. 1, will be part of the statement.

Pomona begins Centennial celebration

Grand fiesta, open house highlight activities next week

Pomona's 100th birthday celebration will center on a grand fiesta and City Hall open house in a "Pomona Centennial Week" observance Sunday, Aug. 17, to Saturday, Aug. 23.

La Fiesta del Rancho San Jose, on Aug. 17, will be held under the auspices of the Bicentennial committees of Chino, Claremont, La Verne, Pomona, San Dimas, and Walnut.

Open house on Aug. 20, sponsored by the Pomona City Council and the Pomona Bicentennial Committee, will be observed with special programs at City Hall, Public Library, police department, fire headquarters and all neighborhood fire stations.

The fiesta, from noon to 9 p.m. will be held at the Pomona Civic Center plaza as part of Pomona's Centennial and the national Bicentennial celebrations.

The six cities are situated on lands with ties dating back to the old Rancho San Jose land grants of early California and the fiesta will emphasize Mexican cultural contributions to the area.

Starting off the fiesta will be a caravan of antique cars carrying guests of honor to the plaza, where flag-raising and other ceremonies will include the playing by bands of both the U.S. National Anthem and the Mexican National Hymn.

Flag presentations will be made by State Sen. Ruben Ayala, and representatives of Congressman Jim Lloyd and Pomona's sister city of Monterrey, Mexico.

Some 50 food, game and exhibit booths will be open for business from noon to 9 p.m.

During those hours, free entertainment will be provided by a variety of performers, including "big-band" and mariachi musicians, Mexican, Indian and square dancers, barbership quartets and others.

Free birthday cake will be offered to visitors and prizes will be given away to persons wearing the most unique costumes.

J. Romo, fiesta chairman, encourages visitors to wear Mexican, Spanish, pioneer, western, Roaring 20s, Gay 90s or other costumes.

Reigning over the festive event will be the Centennial queen, Miss Elizabeth Zilles, and her court, which includes Mrs. May Bowen, Mrs. Alta Visnak, Mrs. Isabel Lopez Fages, Mrs. Alma Williams, Mrs. Anita Palomares Ramirez, Mrs. Helen Selby and Mrs. Harriet Harrison.

Snake, swan and other Indian dances will be performed by Southern California tribes and there will be square dancing exhibitions by nine clubs from five cities.

They are Foot 'n Fiddle and Foothill Twirlers of La Verne, the Turnagins and Bachelors and Bacheloretts and Star Stoppers of Pomona, the Coach Hoppers and Cienega Valley Squares of San Dimas, the Wheels and Chains of Walnut, and the Lamplighters and Calico Rompers of Montclair.

Among the other performers are the Pomona Concert Band, David Ceballos' Mariachis, young Mexican folk musicians Padre Julio and His Conjunto, Mexican folk dancers Hermanitas Gonzales, the Bicentennial Duo drama group, the New Orleans Jazz Club of Southern California, bell specialist William Richard Denton, and the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America.

The open house will carry out the theme, "The Next 100 Years — Building on Pomona's Heritage," and will be from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. at City Hall, 8:15 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the fire and police departments, and from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the library.

There will be a balloon flying contest for children with prizes to be given away. Balloons and helium will be supplied free.

Free swimming will be offered Aug. 20 at Ganesha and Washington parks for persons 17 and under from 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. and from 2:30 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Residents are invited to picnic on Wednesday at the Civic Center.

Special displays, activities and programs are planned in the City Hall by the Tri-City Mental Health Authority and the following city offices: city attorney, administration, water, parks and recreation, management systems, community relations, community development and public works.

There will be historical, lock and other displays set up in the lobby of the police building.

Community development's open house will emphasize the "Next 100 Years."

The library will stage puppet shows in English and Spanish for children at 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. in the Story Room and show two segments of the "America" film series at noon and 7:30 p.m. in the Audio-Visual Room.

Pacific State still battling 'air' problems

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

The saga of air conditioning at Pacific State Hospital has the never ending suspense of a daytime television series.

The problem has continued for more than three years and there appears to be still more questions than answers.

One of the problems is that nine of the wards scheduled for air conditioning were built before the severe earthquakes of the 1930s. They do not meet present earthquake standards nor do they adapt easily to remodeling for the installation of the air conditioning.

Another problem, according to Hal Schmitz, chief of central program services, is that patients must be removed from each of the wards to be renovated for about three months while the work is completed.

"We are only able to vacate four wards at a time," Schmitz said.

So far to date, 11 wards housing 432 patients have been air conditioned. This month, an additional four wards with a capacity of 217 residents, will be completed.

Still to be air conditioned are 27 wards which have 1,151 residents. Thus, with 27 wards still to be remodeled and only four available to be worked on at any one time, it is estimated that the project will require another 21 months.

This would provide complete air conditioning by May 1977, according to Schmitz.

The air conditioning problem at the hospital for mentally retarded hit a new snag this week when a seismic safety survey conducted by the state revealed that Units 6 through 12 and 18 and 19 at the hospital did not meet current safety standards.

The nine units involved house about 400 patients, including some children.

A task force of state representatives is now studying the problem and will report within the next three weeks, Schmitz said. Several alternatives, ranging from remodeling or replacing the wards to building different wards are being considered.

Also being considered, but only if the state would demand immediate evacuation of wards, is transferring residents from Pacific State to other hospitals which have vacant units. One hospital mentioned is Patton State Hospital.

SKILLED SKATEBOARD RIDER

"Queenie," a 3½ year old pointer owned by Francis MacDonald, 1301 Karesh Ave., Pomona, is not to be outdone by youngsters who practice their skateboard skills on hot summer days. "Queenie" not only rides her skateboard with ease, she jumps through a burning hoop, climbs tall ladders and leaps hurdles. The dog has often entertained at schools and hospitals.

Office, lot top Pomona building list

A new office building and parking lot expansion topped construction activity last month in Pomona.

City officials issued a total of 177 permits which represented a combined valuation of $621,943. Included was a permit for a one-story office building at 250 S. Parcells St., valued at $130,000.

The one story structure, with 4,935 square feet of space, is owned by the Third and Parcells Co.

Another permit was issued to the Xerox Corp., 800 E. Bonita Ave., for expansion of its parking lot. The project is estimated to cost $110,000.

Other major projects included construction of a MacDonald's Restaurant, 2145 Murchison Ave., valued at $70,000, and addition to an existing office structure at the California Credit Union, 2322 S. Garey Ave. The 4,500 square foot addition is valued at $70,000.

Home additions and repairs continued with 138 permits issued which represented a $172,434 valuation. In addition, five permits were issued for swimming pools. These are valued at $26,000.

Other permits issued by category include:

Additions and alterations to non-residential buildings, seven permits and $95,400 valuation; signs, four, $3,400; and all other permits, 16, $119,459.

Council will consider a polygraph operator

Pomona City Council Monday will consider an agreement retaining a polygraph operator to provide services to city departments.

If approved, the city would make substantial savings when lie-detector services were used.

Other agenda items for the 8 p.m. meeting include adoption of alternative alignments of E Street with Ganesha Boulevard. One alternative route would go through the Mountain Meadows Golf Course property, while the other would cut across the drag strip area at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds.

At 4 p.m. on Mondays, the council is expected to meet with representatives of Pomona Development Company to review development plans for the northwest corner of Garey Avenue and Mission Boulevard.

The development company has a contractual agreement with the city to construct $3 million in improvements on the property, but there has been one delay after another in finalizing project plans, and at present there are apparently no specific construction proposals.

S. B. County hopes to cut cost

Milk proposals to be presented

Two proposals designed to reduce San Bernardino County's cost for testing milk and making site inspections of dairies will be presented Monday to the county's Board of Supervisors.

Supervisor Robert Townsend will suggest the creameries which process the milk be assigned the task of checking milk for bacteria count and private firms be invited to submit bids for checking the dairies.

County health officials had estimated these inspection programs will cost $155,956 next year. They proposed the county regain about $95,000 of the expense by assessing a $25 per month fee for each producer which would be primarily collected from the distributors and processing plants.

The county has 305 dairies, with most located in the West End communities of Chino, Ontario and Upland. Under state law, the county has been designated as an approved milk inspection service and must take eight milk samplings per year from each dairy.

In addition, the county makes at least six on-site inspections to check the milk barns, refrigeration and for any fly or odor problems, said Townsend.

But the supervisor believes there may be some duplication in testing milk since this is being done on a more frequent basis by the creameries.

"Most creameries are certified by the state to make the milk testing and others can meet certification requirements," he added.

"Since the creameries test the milk more frequently than the county, my proposal would be for the county to accept the creameries' report on the bacterial counts.

"The creameries and producers are concerned about the quality of milk put out to the public since it must meet high standards or the consumers won't buy it," said Townsend.

"With certified laboratories being operated by the distributors and the reports meeting the state's criteria, this would eliminate about $30,000 for milk testing."

Regarding on-site inspections, Townsend said he had received several inquiries from private firms regarding their performing this task. "Discussions were in the $50,000 per year range," he added.

Townsend said he will ask Monday for approval to explore the "contract route" as a means of saving additional money.

The milk and dairy checking programs are directed by the county's environmental health services department which has five persons devoted to these inspections, a senior leadman and a chief. Some of the employes who make the on-site inspections pick up milk samples and transport them to the laboratory, he added.

The supervisor proposes the inspection programs if amended would remain under the control of the county environmental health services department.

Library conducts backpack program

Pomona Public Library will hold an introductory program about backpacking at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Jim Stowell of Alpine Village will present the program, discussing the sport, equipment and safety tips. He will also discuss some of the local areas where backpacking can be enjoyed.

The program will include a slide show of backpacking areas. The Norheim Ski Club is sponsoring the program.

On Monday at 7 p.m. a program about motorcycles will be presented for young people. Randy Jackson of Pomona will discuss motorcycling, motorcycle maintenance and competition.

He will also bring a dirt bike for examination.

Another program for young people will be presented Thursday at 7 p.m. when Jerry Castellano will lead a guitar singalong in the library's Story Theater.

Other children's activities this week include the Over the Rainbow preschool story hour on Tuesday at 10:30 a.m.; the Magic Carpet story hour for ages 4 and up on Wednesday at 4 p.m., and, on Wednesday at 7 p.m., a free film showing, this week featuring two films: "The Violin" and "Stuntman."

'Indonesia' slide show

"Indonesia" is the subject of the slide show scheduled Monday at the Upland Public Library.

George Te Velde will present the free show at 2 p.m. in the library multipurpose room.

Rodeo and circus again on fair slate

A rodeo, circus and horse show are scheduled as free grandstand shows again at the annual Los Angeles County Fair Sept. 12 through 28, fair officials announced today.

Opening Friday, Sept. 12 for three days will be the championship rodeo by the Rodeo Cowboys of America, with top cowboys competing for thousands of dollars in prize money.

The Polack Bros. Circus will appear Sept. 15 through 21, highlighting aerialist Dave Merrifield who will perform acrobatics while he is suspended in midair beneath a helicopter above the grandstand.

Royal Lipizzan Stallions will be the stars of "The Wonderful World of Horses" appearing at the grandstand Sept. 22 through 28.

Directed by skilled riders, the horses perform the historical art of dressage.

Performances start nightly at 8 with Sunday shows beginning at 2 and 7:30 p.m.

Walnut Water District holds open house

The Walnut Valley Water District will hold open house Monday through Friday from noon to 4:45 p.m. in observance of "Better Ways for People" week.

District offices are located at 271 S. Brea Canyon Road in Walnut.

The district Tuesday will host a ground breaking ceremony for the Andrew J. Rodzinak Memorial Reservoir. It is named in honor of the late veterinarian doctor who died while serving as board president. It is scheduled for completion this year.

Howard Hawkins, Metropolitan Water District board president, will address a hosted luncheon following the ground-breaking ceremony.

During the week PVMWD and MWD will host a tour of the A.D. Edmonston Pumping Plant in the Tehachapi Mountains.

Casa Colina gets state grants to aid disabled

Casa Colina Hospital in Pomona has received two grants totaling $150,849 from the state Department of Rehabilitation to be used for vocational rehabilitation services for handicapped persons in the area.

One grant, for $106,399, will be used to continue rehabilitation services to patients of the hospital who have lower back problems. These services include physical therapy, counseling, nursing care and other related medical services.

The second grant, for $44,450, supports the continuation of the hospital's janitorial services training program. Staff members provide handicapped patients with work experience and job placement. Last year, 86 per cent of the trainees were placed in competitive jobs.

To qualify for the grants Casa Colina Hospital contributed $37,712, bringing the total amount of money available for the projects to $188,561.

The grant funds were made available by the federal Office of Rehabilitation Services and granted through the state under a contract with the hospital.

Social workers hold meeting

The National Association of Social Workers members in the Valley will meet Tuesday noon at Tri-City Mental Health Center, 1140 N. Garey Ave., Pomona.

The members will discuss future activities over a sack lunch.

The meeting will focus on child abuse.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Karthyn Valverde, 622-1271, or Yuri Payton, 623-6751.

Proving worth of democracy

It is difficult to believe that a year has passed since the greatest constitutional crisis the nation has ever faced, save for the Civil War. It will always and forever be known simply as "Watergate", and it reached its dramatic climax with the resignation of Richard Nixon from the office of the presidency.

That the anniversary has come and gone with an almost total absence of observance or comment cannot be due alone to the fact that Americans have forgotten, or want to forget, the sordid scandal which absorbed their attention for nearly two years.

It says something about the resiliency of our political system and the abiding commitment of the American people to the principle that ours is a government of laws, not of men.

It is also difficult to recall the passions that stirred Americans during the last days of Watergate, and a month later when President Ford granted an untimely, or certainly controversial, pardon to his predecessor. Despite the bitterness many felt over the forced resignation, no pro-Nixon party has gathered around the ex-president in exile — nor, let it be emphasized, has he attempted to encourage one — dedicated to his rehabilitation or some sort of political revenge.

The same would not be true in many other countries.

Not much, it is claimed, has changed in Washington in the past year. It is still politics as usual, and the record of the "reform" Congress elected last November offers little to counter that view.

Perhaps so. Perhaps it will always be so. As Churchill said, democracy is the worst system — except for all the others.

But something else can also be said: For all the lamentations one hears about the future of the country as it approaches the beginning of its third century, Americans have shown an amazing capacity to surmount crises, to put aside honest and deeply held differences and rally together for the integrity and safety of this commonality we call America.

We are more than just the material envy of the world. We continue to hold high the beacon light of liberty under law the Founders first lit so long ago.

Sohio brings in a gusher

There must be money in oil. Standard Oil of Ohio (Sohio), which ranks only 12th among U.S. petroleum producers, has just completed arrangements to borrow a whopping $1.75 billion — the most money ever borrowed at one time by any American Corporation — to finance the trans-Alaska pipeline.

The massive debenture, sold to 76 insurance companies, pension funds and bank trust departments, comes on top of another $1.5 billion the company has borrowed since 1973 to pay for the development of its Prudhoe Bay oil field.

"We saw people coming into this offering with money in volumes higher than they've ever committed to one deal before," says Paul D. Phillips, a Sohio senior vice president.

The reason is not hard to discern. Sohio owns half of an estimated five billion barrles of oil in Alaska and figures that, after subtracting drilling and transportation costs, it will net about $6 a barrel when the oil starts flowing in 1977. That's at today's prices.

And while the President and the Congress continue to wrangle over what tomorrow's oil prices will be, one thing is certain, and that is that it will not be lower in 1977 than it is in 1975.

A biting comment

Say what you will about women's liberation, it may just possibly be instrumental in reducing the incidence of Bruxism.

Eh?

It's no joke. Bruxism is the unconscious habit of clenching or grinding the teeth together. It usually happens during sleep, even to denture wearers. The result is not only wear and tear on the teeth but in many cases chronic headaches that have no biological cause.

Four out of five known bruxists are women, according to Drs. William R. Cinotti and Arthur Trider, professor of prosthodontics (dental appliances) at the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey. And that's where the feminist movement comes in.

"It's a matter of inner conflict," says the experts. "We're accustomed to openly aggressive behavior in men, which tends to reduce their inner conflicts, while women are expected to remain cool and composed."

Thus, they add, "liberation may permit women to vent aggressive tendencies more openly and freely, and this may reduce the incidence of bruxism." A chewing out a day helps keep the dentist away?

Issue: educational proficiency

This letter is in response to certain statements and allegations contained in the newspaper article about La Verne College and its dispute with the Veterans Administration and Bureau of School Approvals regarding measurement of pre-discharge Educational program (PREP) courses.

Although your article focuses on the government probe of alleged administrative irregularities by La Verne College, the article failed to cover the real issue between La Verne College and the Veterans Administration. The real issue centers around an educational question: Should a student receive credit for a course when he has demonstrated proficiency in a subject matter or should credit be awarded for a course simply because a student spends a certain amount of time in a classroom?

Under the La Verne College program, each student was diagnostically tested and entered into a contract indicating those skills they needed to master before earning course credit. The college made available to the student several learning environments which included regularly scheduled classes, a learning center open and staffed twelve hours per day, and individualized instruction and counseling.

These were all carried out by carefully selected trained staff. Obviously, a program of this design is educationally and financially more sophisticated and more costly than one which utilizes one instructor for every thirty students. When the student demonstrated that the contracted skill had been mastered, credit was awarded. The La Verne College approach, supported by Public Law 92-540, 38, allowed the college to measure courses on demonstrated learning proficiency in a particular subject rather than the student "warming a seat" for a given number of hours.

Any school involved in PREP Programs will agree that the typical PREP student (with or without a high school diploma) is a study in educational frustration because he was "turned off" by sitting in a classroom. La Verne College offered an educational alternative to this student. Through a combination of learning situations and credentialed instructors, the college continued in its primary mission of providing for the unique educaional needs and welfare of its students. The flexibility of this program, combined with the competency and dedication of our instructors, received the wholehearted support of our Navy students as well as their commanding officers who recognized and commended the educational accomplishments achieved by La Verne College's PREP Program.

The College has cooperated with all governmental agencies and sought their guidance. La Verne College offered a PREP Program which always intended to comply with Public Law 92-540, 38 and with appropriate Veterans Administration regulations. College officials have consistently worked with the appropriate government agencies to identify and resolve any problems. Likewise, college officials and our attorneys have cooperated fully with state and federal agencies to speedily resolve the issues at hand. The college has made its records available at all times to the Veterans Administration as well as to other governmental agencies. On the other hand, the college has received no reports from the Veterans Administration even though that agency promised on numerous occasions that we would receive copies of all surveys.

La Verne College is pleased that your paper has brought to light the conflict that exists between schools like La Verne College which attempt to meet in a legal and innovative manner the unique educational needs of a segment of American society while, at the same time, attempting to cope with the myriad of rules and regulations. Oftentimes, there is an arbitrary and conflicting interpretation of those rules by various government officials.

La Verne College has in the past and will in the future continue to carry out its mission of providing top quality education to all of its students. We are most hopeful that before this issue with the bureaucracy is resolved, certified educational auditors will be called in to review the La Verne College programs for we are confident these are exemplary in achieving the objectives for which the PREP Program was designed.

Castro: Portugal's adviser

WASHINGTON — Portugal's ruling generals have a secret adviser who has been teaching them how to impose a Communist dictatorship on an unwilling populace. He is none other than Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, a preminent expert at subverting the will of the people.

On April 25, the Portuguese people voted overwhelmingly in favor of the moderate political parties which support democracy. A scant 12.5 per cent of the voters backed the Communist party.

But the military triumvirate received an urgent recommendation from Castro, according to intelligence reports, that they ignore the April elections, suppress the press and overpower the opposition.

The Cuban leader cited the experience of the late Salvador Allende, the martyred Marxist president of Chile, as evidence that a successful revolution cannot be consummated in the framework of a democracy.

The advice from Havana was echoed in Lisbon by party boss Alvaro Cunhal who acknowledged with uncharacteristic candor: "We Communists do not accept the game of elections."

Cunhal began plotting with Castro two months before the Portuguese coup. The secret intelligence reports reveal that Cunhal made a secret trip to Havana in February, 1974.

Two months later, the Portuguese Communists, in cahoots with leftist military officers, overthrew the rightwing dictatorship of Marcello Caetano.

The triumphant military junta, according to the intelligence reports, began listening to Castro from the first. A close working relationship was developed through Cuba's General Intelligence Directorate, which maintains a large Portuguese-speaking Brazilian section. This made it possible for the Cubans to communicate easily with the Portuguese leftists.

Already the Cubans have helped the Portuguese organize an internal security apparatus, which could evolve quietly into a secret police force. Cuban-style "defense councils" are also blossoming all over Portugal.

These are little more than armed commando units, which the Communists use to intimidate the moderate majority. The disciplined rowdies break up demonstrations and beat their opponents into silence. Neighbors become afraid to speak to one another for fear of retribution from the Communist goon squads.

In late July, Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho, the Portuguese internal security chief and a member of the ruling troika, paid a nine-day visit to Cuba.

In heart-to-heart talks with Castro, according to intelligence sources, Carvalho was lectured on how to proceed with the "revolution." The Cuban dictator stressed that the Portuguese should avoid Allende's mistake of putting up with democracy and attempting "transactional settlements" with the opposition.

Castro described Allende contemptuously as "a fool" who thought he could achieve a revolution in Chile through the democratic processes. The press must be silenced, the opposition intimidated and the populace regimented, Castro urged. He warned it would take "mass mobilization" — meaning Communist control of every neighborhood — to carry out the revolution.

The brash, flamboyant Carvalho apparently was impressed. He is characterized by intelligence analysts as a radical Marxist, enormously ambitious, who may see himself as the Castro of Portugal.

He came out of his meetings with the Bearded One proclaiming: "I gathered profound guidelines, teachings even, which I believe will be extremely useful for the continuity of our revolution."

Back in Lisbon, Carvalho began putting the lessons into practice. He issued stern warnings that dissidents would be herded into the "bull ring" or lined up in front of firing squads. "Unfortunately," he said, "it's be becoming impossible to carry out a socialist revolution by completely peaceful means."

It is not considered a coincidence that a Cuban military delegation arrived in Lisbon about the same time that Carvalho returned from Havana. The visitors included Brig. Gen. Senen Casas, the Army chief; Brig. Gen. Fernando Vecino, the Army's political czar; and Capt. Emidgio Baez, the Navy chief.

These three are considered specialists on monolithic discipline in the armed forces. Within days after their arrival, the Portuguese junta began purging conservatives from key units.

To cement the Cuban-Portuguese connection, Castro also sent one of his most trusted aides, Francisco Astray, to Lisbon as his top diplomat. Significantly, one of Astray's close friends is the personable, young Soviet ambassador to Portugal, Arnold L. Kalinin.

Intelligence reports claim that Kalinin was trained by the KGB and was assigned to Lisbon specifically to help the Communists gain power. He keeps a low profile, but behind the active Cubans is a shadowy Soviet presence. Intelligence reports suggest, indeed, that the Soviets are using the Cubans to manipulate events in Portugal.

The United States, meanwhile, is doing little more than watch the Portuguese crisis unravel. To the dismay of U.S. diplomats on the scene, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has refused to help the moderate Lisbon leaders in their struggle against the leftwing radicals.

Some top advisers were hoping, for example, that President Ford would visit Lisbon after his stopover in Spain last spring. Such a gesture would have been a tremendous boost for the Portuguese moderates. But Ford and Kissinger decided against it, without even bothering to ask the opinion of the State Department experts.

Apparently, the President would prefer to send the CIA to the rescue. But the Senate investigation of the CIA, he recently lamented, had prevented the agency from engaging in any "covert operations" in Portugal.

Retorted a diplomatic source, with barely controlled disgust: "Who wants COVERT action? What the Portuguese moderates need right now is a little OVERT help."

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

According to a Cal Poly students survey, as recently reported in this newspaper, "Senior Citizens have a strong streak of altruism." — Which is just about par for the course for student surveys. No matter what they are surveying, the dedicated members of our youthful intelligentsia invariably feel they have to make the results sound important. Why couldn't they have just said: "Senior Citizens have great concern for the welfare of others"?

But enough of such old age inspired bickering over something of trivial import. The really unfortunate thing about that survey was it didn't tell why Senior Citizens feel all that "altruistic." So today I feel duty bound to complete the story. — I speak from personal experience, of course, as a Social Security authenticated member of the Senior Citizen clan; and the Cal Poly surveyors have full permission to add my explanatory remarks to their findings. — The truth is, there's nothing more potent than "Ancient Age" to make a lot of us old geezers simply wallow in mellow Altruism. — "Ancient Age", that is, acquired at frequent intervals in an oversized shot glass.

There is a lavish new governor's mansion now almost completed in Sacramento. When finished and furnished, it will undoubtedly have cost the California Taxpayers in excess of $1,000,000. But the strange thing about it all is that in these days of political profligacy, our Governor Edmund G. Brown, Jr. emphatically refuses to live in it. Which just goes to show you how at least one politician has changed over the past 82 years. Nothing like that ever happened in those so called good old days. In fact, according to an article which appeared in The Pomona Weekly Times in February, 1893, the Editor expressed no little concern over the proposed building of a governor's mansion.

"A bill is pending," he wrote, "to erect a governor's residence to cost $45,000. It ought to be defeated, Governors are not all alike in their tastes, and each new governor would want new furnishings at large cost."

Heartline

HEARTLINE is a service for Senior Citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. Write to HEARTLINE, 8514 North Main St., Dayton, Ohio, 45415.

Heartline: I called Social Seucrity three times and asked the same question, and received three different answers. What am I supposed to believe? Doesn't anyone at Social Security learn from the same book? Mrs. G.

Answer: This particular problem has been brought to our attention an alarming number of times. It is a fact that Social Security employes are well schooled and trained, yet many people receive incorrect incomplete information when they call. We feel that the percentage of people who are misinformed is a small percentage, in ratio to the number of people who call Social Security. Due to the large number of people who call each day to Social Security offices all over the country, it adds up to many misinformed people.

It is our opinion that top people in Social Security are aware of this problem and are continuously working on it. If you feel that you received incorrect information from Social Security, write to us. In general, there are faults in Social Security programs, as well as faults in the people who oversee the program. But they, as we, are human. It is Heartline's opinion that most Social Security employes do their job well.

Heartline: Is it true that if you are 65 or older and sell your home you may not have to pay tax on the gain? P.R.S.

Answer: If you were 65 or older before the date of the sale or exchange of your principal residence, you may generally choose to exclude from income all or part of the gain. In order to claim this exclusion, you must have owned or used the property as your principal residence for at least five years out of the eight years before the sale. You can take advantage of this provision of the tax law only once in your lifetime.

If you meet these requirements, you can choose to exclude the entire gain if you sell your home for $20,000 or less. If it is sold for more than $20,000, you still may exclude part of the profit. For more details, see IRS publication No. 523, "Tax Information on Selling Your Home". The brochure is free from your IRS office.

Ann Landers

Doesn't have to be monotony

Dear Ann Landers: Regarding the husband who had to look elsewhere because his wife was "too tired, too busy, or not in the mood": I was interested in your cop-out response that "many women have the same complaint and isn't it a shame they can't reshuffle the deck and put the too tired, too busy and out-of-the-mooders together." Try this for size:

A fifth grader got up in English class and said, "In the U.S., a man can have only one wife at a time. This is called monotony."

From the mouths of babes, maybe? — A Philosopher

Dear Phil: I'm sure it's monotony for many, but it doesn't need to be if at least one person has imagination and cares enough to keep the physical side of marriage exciting.

Nothing lasts, including sexual excitement, unless you work at it.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 13 years old and am writing this letter not only for myself but for myself but for my four younger brothers and sisters. They are 11, 10, 9, and 6.

Our parents don't miss a night to fight. We are fed up with the yelling and screaming and name-calling, door-slamming and plate-throwing.

Dad works hard and is a great guy. The minute he walks in the door Mom hits him with a list of complaints. He tells her to shut up and then the battle is on.

After the fight is over, Mom cries and says Dad doesn't love her. She is wrong. He loves her a lot. But if he didn't, would you blame him? Who wants to get chewed out all the time?

Please help us straighten these two out. We don't want our family split, but this is no way to live. — Five Unhappy Kids

Dear Kids: I hope every pair of battling parents who sees your letter will pretend it was written by their children. (Too bad you were so explicit about your number and ages.)

Your mom and dad need a third party to sit down with them, listen to the complaints from both sides and set up some House Rules. This means counseling.

There are many places they can go — The Salvation Army, YMCA, to their clergyman, Catholic Charities, or to the county or state mental health society. Please show them this column and tell them I hope they get moving.

Dear Ann Landers: I took a job as a telephone operator four months ago and it has been an education in human behavior. I had no idea there were so many crazy, stupid, rude and downright foul-mouthed people in the world.

I've been asked how to get gum out of a kid's hair, how many eggs to put in a sponge cake, what to do about cockroaches and a dog who snores.

When I have been unable to find a number because the person doesn't know how to spell the name or give any clue to the address, I've been cussed out in language I wouldn't write and you couldn't print.

I hope you will print this letter so the public will get wise to itself and have some consideration for us telephone employes who are trying to earn a living, like anyone else. — Blistered Ears

Dear Ears: Don't expect miracles. "The public" is "people" and it takes all kinds to make a world.

What kind of wedding goes with today's new life styles? Does anything go? Ann Landers's completely new "The Bride's Guide" tells what's right for today's weddings. For a copy, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (10 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

For Monday, Aug. 11, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) There's opportunity around you today through those you come in contact with, yet it's likely you won't see the forest for the trees.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Quantity means more to you today than quality. What could appear to be a big bargain may actually be a lot of little, worthless pieces.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're apt to place more emphasis on having a good time today than you should. Keep the aspirin handy and your diet in mind.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your household budget can only be stretched so far. Wait till you can buy what you want without having to pay excessively.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A plan of importance to you is sound. It should work, but you're too easily influenced. You'll change it unwisely.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Continue to be careful again today in managing your resources. Though you may anticipate additional funds, deal only from what's in hand.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be wary of one today who may promise more than he can deliver. Bank too heavily on his words and your hopes could later be dashed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Watch your step today. Don't talk too freely about a confidential matter to one who has a problem keeping secrets.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This not the time to try to modify arrangements you've made with another to better suit your ends. Honor your agreement.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't press your luck today where your reputation is on the line. The limb you're out on is a weak one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be extra attentive today to chores so routine you do them by rote. They're the ones that could give you a headache.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be careful in business situations today if you're offered something on the side for going along with the deal.

Your Birthday, Aug. 11, 1975

Your prosepects look very promising for the coming year, provided you don't try to put too many irons in the fire at once. Weed out the time and money wasters carefully.

Some advice from a pro

There's no doubt about it. Doctors are finally coming into their own. They are the darlings of the talk shows, the heroes of television and the most sought-after guests at cocktail parties everywhere.

The other night I lucked out and found myself seated next to my doctor at a dinner. "How much free advice do you figure you've given out tonight?" I chided.

"Every professional gets it," he smiled good-naturedly. "I mean how many homes without a piano does Liberace get invited to?"

"But how do you survive?" I asked. "People must drive you crazy with their symptoms."

"First," he said, "I divide them. I tell them I'm strictly an Ob-Gyn man. That weeds out all of the men. I re-route them to a party where an urologist is holding court or to a theater, where I know an internist is in attendance.

"Then, I divide the women. I listen to the hysterical ones first. The ones who have just read a Reader's Digest story which gave them three months to live. I always reassure them you lose something in the condensation."

"What about the others?"

"I tell them even though it is a cocktail party, I take my work quite seriously and would not presume to offer a diagnosis on a simple interview. I then invite them to come over to a corner and take their clothes off for a full professional examination."

"You sound flip," I said, "but it must bug you to dispense all that free medical advice all the time."

"Not at all," he grinned. "After the women have fled, I too circulate among the guests. Tonight alone, I have saved $550 in professional fees. That CPA over there gave me two new deductions I hadn't even considered, the attorney in the corner advised me on my partnership, the educator trying to eat his salad told me what to do about my son's reading problem and that professional golfer at the end of the table just knocked three strokes off my game."

"Incredible," I said.

"By the way," he said, "as a newspaper humorist, aren't you going to say anything funny all night?"

"Sure," I said, "take two aspirins and call me in the morning."

"Is that supposed to be funny?" he said.

"You thought so when you charged me $10 for it last April."

Dr. Miller

Don't play vet with your pet

DEAR DR. MILLER: Two out of three times we've been to our favorite camping spot, Julius Sneezer, our dog, has had an outbreak of the usual, his hay fever. He coughs, sneezes and wheezes so much he doesn't have any fun, so we have less. Last time, I gave him some hay fever pills put out for children, and they seemed to help him a lot. If they're safe for children, shouldn't they, really now, be safe enough for a dog? — P. J.

DEAR P. J.: No veterinarian would want to prescribe medication whose ingredients and dosage are unknown for a dog whose weight and condition have not been determined An additional consideration in prescribing drugs for Sneezer would be a concern for the effect of these drugs on his powers of judgment and coordination. Antihistamines, a common ingredient of anti-allergic products, may make dogs (as well as humans) drowsy. This could affect his judgment in relation to traffic if he were near a road. It might confuse his sense of direction and interfere with coordination, either of which could be extremely serious in the wild.

So once again, I'd have to say that even though on a one-time basis your own prescription was a success for Sneezer, it would be prudent to have the doctor prescribe precise medication. He would take into consideration all the above-mentioned factors.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My husband's always griping about the vet bills we have on our miniature poodle. Ever since we bought her for $150, he's been screaming about money, now because we're having trouble getting her broken leg to heal. I admit she cost more than just a mutt would've, but she's worth it. It's ridiculous for him to blame everything on the fact that she's pedigreed. Could you please straighten him out on this broken leg business? It's silly to say that if she'd been a mongrel her leg would have healed any faster, and I wish you could make him admit it. — P. T.

DEAR P. T.: Sorry, but you picked the wrong point to try to prove. All other factors being equal, if a "mutt" and a miniature poodle had a similar fractured leg, the healing process would be slower and more prone to complications for the poodle.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Can you tell us briefly please what is the difference between the ear mites that cats usually get and the ear mites that dogs get. — S. Y.

DEAR S. Y.: Their host . . .

DEAR DR. MILLER: We've decided to put our two cats on a better diet. It's working with Punky, but Gypsy's holding out. She'll eat her old food or nothing. My hardhearted husband wants to starve her into it. He says when she gets hungry enough, she'll eat it. Years ago this worked with a dog we had, but what about a very stubborn cat? — R.R.

DEAR R.R.: Cats are usually difficult to switch diets on. Some are almost impossible. While it's true most cats eventually would get hungry enough to eat what was offered, this is a dangerous assumption for some finicky felines. This would be a particularly dangerous procedure in young or aged animals, and it's always safest to proceed under the veterinarian's care. Then not only can determination be made as to whether or not the new diet is an improvement, but also advance planning can be formulated in order to establish the best way to accomplish the change.

Occasionally, the veterinarian may want to speed up the switch and support the feline with vitamin injections, particularly those containing B complex.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Two bitches out of my large kennel usually deliver premature pups. In trying to save as many of these as possible, I've devised a water bed which seems to me to be working pretty well. Friends scoff at my baby water bed, but why not? Is there any reason why I shouldn't use it, when it seems to work? — K.S.

DEAR K.S.: Success should be reason enough. Miniature water beds have proven beneficial to preemies, human species, by providing important movement stimulation without harmful side effects. Preemie puppies, too, should benefit.

No smoking link to arthritis

DEAR DR. LAMB — Would you kindly discuss the effects of smoking on an arthritic person? I feel there is some sort of link between the two and feel if you confirmed this maybe it would help people give up smoking. I know a woman in her 70s who is bothered with painful arthritis, but while complaining about it continues with her ciragettes.

DEAR READER — Cigarettes are associated with a lot if ills, but there is no evidence that they cause or make arthritis worse.

There is some evidence that patients with rheumatoid arthritis are particularly prone to develop lung disease from smoking, much more so than the average smoker and that is bad enough already.

For a discussion of the effects of tobacco on health, write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019 and send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents, and ask for The Health Letter number 2-6, Tobacco: Cigarettes, Cigars, Pipes.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am so angry at myself for being so dumb. I had two gall bladder attacks, so I called my obstetrician. He is the only doctor I have had since my only problem has been having six babies. He sent me to a friend of his, an internist. I had tests, and three days later he said the radiologist's report said I had gall stones, and should go see a surgeon. He sent me to a surgeon friend of his because he doesn't operate.

Now why didn't I know that and go to a surgeon in the first place? I suppose all this running around is so everybody can get a bite out of my Blue Cross Blue Shield! I want you to tell me which of the following list os specialists do surgery and which ones don't, for future use.

DEAR READER — Forgive me for not including your list, but you are using poor judgment.

Think how angry you would be with yourself if you had gone to a surgeon and found out that your problem was not gall bladder disease. Then you would have seen a surgeon for no reason at all and would still have the problem which would require an internist.

Your obstetrician was right in sending you to an internist first. The diagnosis could have been several different things, including an ulcer or hiatal hernia or colon problems. The internist has to hear the symptoms and do an examination to make a correct diagnosis. The X rays help, but many people have stones and have symptoms from something else, such as a spastic colon.

Except in those small communities where the surgeon does family practice as well as some surgery, I recommend that all patients see their family physician first or an internist before seeing a surgeon. The exception is for injuries, as from an automobile accident, that are of such a nature as to require a surgeon.

A good surgeon really is too busy to sort through all the medical complaints that may not require surgery at all. That is why he limits his practice to surgery. A surgeon who is too enthusiastic about surgery, and there are some, often has his enthusiasm controlled by the internist who doesn't do surgery.

Finally, many patients who require surgery also have medical problems that need the skills of the family physician or the internist, in addition to surgery.

A lady, a girl or a woman?

A national magazine addressed this query to women: "Which would you rather be called — 'one of the girls', 'one of the ladies' or 'one of the women'?" More than 11,000 females answered. A sizable sampling, that. Exactly 35 per cent said girls, 17 per cent ladies, 44 per cent said women and only 4 per cent said they didn't care.

TRY THIS color test on yourself. Your preferences may indicate something about your personality, according to recent studies. Intellectuals like blue. Athletes prefer red. Congenial party types pick orange. Egotists go for yellow. And the lovelorn, those unfortunate sould, develop a thing about purple.

SUNKEN SHIPS

Q. "Does anybody know how many sunken ships are on the ocean floor off New England?"

A. Estimators say about 4,000, at least. Do you realize more than a million vessels have sunk off coastal waters worldwide in the last 500 years?

THE BIG BOOK at hand defines a "canard" as "an extravagant or absurd report or story set afloat to delude the public." Comes from the French word meaning "duck." Tale behind it is a Frenchman once bet he could eat 20 ducks at one sitting, if given 20 days to prepare for the banquet. He didn't win his bet. Instead, he fed one duck a day to others, dining on the last one himself on the 20th day. But the nonsense drew a lot of attention, so the word for duck came to mean a phony report.

COHAN

Am now informed that George M. Cohan was not born on July 4th as the record shows. Word at hand is that he actually was born on July 3, 1878. But knowing how advantageous would be an Independence Day birthday, his father allegedly doctored the date.

IN WHAT NATION are older women most likely to involve themselves in romantic affairs with exceedingly young fellows? So inquires a client of our Love and War man. France merits that distinction, says he. Such amorous engagements there long have been regarded by many as prettily poetic.

IF YOUR ancestors came from Germany, why don't you concentrate on your bowling game? Maybe you'll turn into a winner. More than half the men who won bowling championships in this country have been of German descent.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Probably the most elegant of all squeezes is the criss-cross. It doesn't come up too often, but when it does it is a thing of beauty.

North may have overbid a trifle when he bid four and five notrump, or maybe South shouldn't have jumped to seven. In any event the average bridge player would be unable to work out the 13th trick, since East was sitting right in back of dummy with all the clubs and diamonds.

The late Charles Lochridge, who played this hand some 35 years ago, had no trouble with it.

He won the heart and promptly cashed four trumps. East discarded a club and a heart. Then Charley led the second high heart. He chucked a diamond from dummy and East chucked a diamond right in back.

By this time Charley was so sure that East was sitting with three diamonds and four clubs that he led a fifth trump, discarded dummy's last low diamond and showed his hand.

He explained that if East threw another diamond, he would cash dummy's acekings of both minor suits, criss-cross back to his hand by ruffing a club and make the last trick with his eight of diamonds.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from Mississippi asks, "We play 16-18 point notrumps. What should I open with:

♠ J 5 3 ♥ A K Q 9 7
♦ K 2 ♣ K 10 8?

The answer is one notrump. When you hand meets all notrump requirements you should bid notrump in preference to even a five-card major suit. If you open this hand one heart, you are likely to be lost at your next turn. When you open one notrump you will have eliminated almost all future problems.

What people say

Couple engaged

Miss Yolette Marie Rios of Pomona and Jose Madera of Hesperia are engaged.

The bride-elect, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Rios of Pomona, was graduated from Ganesha High School and Mt. San Antonio College. She was a songleader for one year at MSAC.

Miss Rios is a junior at Cal State, Fullerton where she is majoring in special education.

The future bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jose Madera of Hesperia, was graduated from the UC Riverside with honors.

Mrs. Madera is a graduate student at USC and is employed by the Los Angeles County Special Schools.

No wedding date has been set.

Wax type

Linoleum, vinyl, vinyl asbestos, asphalt tile and rubber tile are resilient flooring materials. They do not require sealers. For these, water-based products are usually recommended, although a solvent-based wax and polish can be used, except on rubber and asphalt tile.

Joyce Brothers

Working mothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband died two years ago, and now I'm raising my family alone. For the last year that my husband was living I worked and always felt guilty about it, because a woman friend told me I was making my husband feel useless and impotent. He died of a heart attack, and while I'm sure it was totally unrelated to my work I've always felt a bit guilty. After his death, I continued with my job as it's now basically the only support I have for my two daughters and myself.

My 16-year-old daughter came to me about a week ago and shocked me by telling me that she was "on the pill." I was so stunned I didn't know what to say and, as a result said nothing. Once again, however, I wondered if I should be at home and if I had wronged my high school-age children by not being home when they arrive from school. Do you think my daughter is telling me she wants me to stay at home and be more of a mother? — C.F.

Dear C.F.: I doubt that. However, I'm sure your daughter is trying to tell you something and you should encourage her to openly and freely express her feelings about sex and about any current problems related to sex.

She may be asking you indirectly to place some restrictions and limitations on the hours she's allowed to be out at night or she may want to get some adyice and is afraid to ask for it directly. Children are quick to react to their parents' reactions and if you appear shocked or embarrassed, your daughter may not feel free to ask the questions or get the needed guidance. Dr. Ghislaine D. Godenne, director of the adolescent psychiatry service at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, says that girls who bring up the subject of sex may want their mothers to discourage them, since teenagers often need adults to set limits for them.

Usually, teenagers are not sexually promiscuous if they are getting the love and affection they need from their parents. When a teenager is promiscuous, it generally means that there is trouble on the home front and that she is desperately searching for effection and reassurance. Because she isn't getting what she needs from her parents, she may turn to peers.

I think you're feeling guilty when you should feel proud that you're able to provide for your children at this time. If you hadn't taken the job when you did, you might not have been prepared to step in to help economically when it was most needed. By the time children reach high school age, it shouldn't be necessary for parents to be at home ready and waiting to take care of their every need. The quality of time you do spend with your daughters is extremely important, however, and you should try to set aside certain hours, when you're rested, so you can explore their needs and feelings with them.

The working woman usually helps her husband because she is sharing the burdens with him. Often, she prelongs his life span by making it unnecessary for him to overwork and to carry the entire load of family support.

It sounds to me as if the "friend" who told you you were making your husband feel useless and impotent may have been jealous of your doing what she might have wished to do herself. She may have wanted you to have more time for her and may have said this hoping it would make you quit your job. I'm sure if your working had made your husband as upset at your friend thought, he'd have discussed it with you himself. Only the very insecure, anxious male is threatened by his wife's working. If impotency is related to work at all, it is more likely that the man works so hard, he is too fatigued to enjoy sex, or that he is so ambitious, he is in a constant state of anxiety.

Forget your old guilt feelings for they are unfounded. Take some time now to re-establish close relations with your daughter.

Increase seen in major

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Enrollment in engineering in Stanford University's undergraduate school has jumped nearly 40 per cent with the number of women majoring in the field nearly doubling.

The total of undergraduate majors rose from 471 to 651 this year with the number of women increasing from 49 to 91.

Good jobs and improved chances for graduate work are two reasons for the local and national trends, says Al Kirkland, assistant dean of engineering. Starting salaries for those with bachelor degrees in engineering from Stanford run $1,200 to $1,250 per month.

The first postage stamp was issued in England May 6, 1840.

EARLY GUESTS — Mrs. Donna Allen greets John Rath as he arrives for rehearsal for Speakeasy party to be given by Women of the Moose and Loyal Order of Moose on Saturday while Mrs. Brenda Grani checks peephole in the entry door. Event will be dinner dance.

Pop Warner dance set Saturday

La Verne-San Dimas Pop Warner Football League will hold its "Kick-Off Get-Acquainted" dance Saturday from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. in Holy Name of Mary Parish Hall, San Dimas.

Parents of Pop Warner participants are especially urged to attend the gathering so they may meet coaches, board and auxiliary members who will be working with their children during the season.

Surprise

Speakeasy party

Set Saturday

The Women of the Moose in conjunction with the Loyal Order of the Moose will sponsor a Speakeasy Night at Pomona Moose Lodge, 300 S. San Antonio Ave., Pomona, Saturday, at 6:30 p.m.

Members will revert back to the 1920s when they present a complete dinner show in honor of Al Kaponey's birthday. Admission through a big black door complete with peephole will be by password and ticket purchase only.

The show will highlight Al Kaponey, Frank Nutty, Buggs Moron and Elliott Mess as well as The Touchables.

All members of the Moose are invited to attend the dinner dance and may obtain more information by calling Mrs. Brenda Grani, 624-7746, or the Moose Lodge Office, 622-1825.

Dinner dance charted

California's oldest and largest pro-life organization has completed plans for its second annual fund-raising event, an "Evening For Life" dinner dance, to be hosted by the Right to Life League of Southern California on Sept. 23.

Mrs. Joseph Dysart, league president, has confirmed that Dr. Mildred Jefferson, Boston and surgeon and president of the National Right to Life Committee, Washington, D.C., will be the featured speaker.

Dr. Jefferson was the first black woman graduate of Harvard University Medical School and is currently assistant professor of surgery and staff general surgeon at Boston University School of Medicine.

Proceeds from the benefit will be used to expand the Right to Life League's service and education departments.

The event will be held in the Beverly Wilshire Hotel Ballroom. Mrs. Patrick J. Frawley is honorary chairman. Felix McGinnis is chairman of the men's committee and Mrs. James F. LeSage is reservations chairman.

Yogi Berra: the man, the manager

EDITOR'S NOTE: Yogi Berra, one of baseball's legendary figures, was fired last week as manager of the New York Mets. The man who knows him best is another former catcher, Joe Garagiola, now an NBC-TV sports broadcaster. They grew up together in an Italian neighborhood in St. Louis. In the following article, Garagiola reminisces, tells how he feels about what happened to his old friend and looks to the future.

By JOE GARAGIOLA
For The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — I've been asked the same question the last couple of days. How do I feel about Yogi Berra getting fired?

Well I don't mind telling anybody that I'm disappointed. Very disappointed. I feel like anybody would feel if their best friend lost his job. I'm hurt and depressed for my friend. I think he deserved better. I think he deserved a lot better.

But this really isn't a sad time for Yogi. He takes this kind of thing better than the rest of us. He'll land on his feet. He always does. Yogi's a good man.

It is characteristic of the man that when he was fired you didn't hear any badmouthing or potshotting. Like always, he showed a lot of class. Other guys might be shooting off their mouths, criticizing management.

But where was Yogi on Thursday? He was at Shea Stadium saying goodbye to his players, talking to Donald Grant (the man who fired him) and posing for pictures with Roy McMillan (the new manager) and Joe McDonald (general manager.)

I saw in the paper that Yogi said he was praying for the Mets to win the pennant. Well, he wasn't praying in any religious sense. He was just talking from his heart, telling everybody that he sincerely wanted the Mets to win. He doesn't have a vindictive bone in his body.

I'm very proud to be his friend.

And I've been his friend for as long as I can remember. In fact, I can't ever remember not knowing him.

I lived at 5446 Elizabeth Ave. in St. Louis and Yogi lived at 5447. Just across the street. Our fathers worked in the same brickyard. His older brother and my brother worked in the same restaurant. He has three kids. I have three kids. He had a boy; I had a boy. He had a boy; I had a boy. He had a boy; I had a girl.

Yogi wasn't a real leader when we were kids. He was the strong, silent type. When we decided to go to the movies on Sundays, he'd come along. He didn't usually make suggestions. But when he did say something, everybody stopped and listened. He wasn't loud or flamboyant. I was the loud and flamboyant one.

Yogi led by doing and be being himself. There was no fancy stuff in Yogi then, and there's none now. Yogi is Yogi. If you liked him, you liked him forever. He wasn't going to change tomorrow.

He's a beautiful, direct man. If I wanted to make a blueprint for a manager, I'd use Yogi Berra for his temperament. And if I wanted to make a blueprint for a man, I'd use Yogi Berra for his sincerity, integrity and loyalty. He's exactly what you see.

But what makes me mad is when people make Yogi out to be something stupid.

They tell a story that he wouldn't sleep on a Murphy bed because he didn't want to sleepin the wall. Now I tend to doubt he ever said that.

If you listen, Yogi stories may be funny because he may say things incorrectly. But they always make sense. He may go a different road to get there but damn if his route isn't really the fastest one. Everything he says is succinct and plain people talk. It may require a double-take but his statements always make sense.

Like I read in the paper that Roy McMillan said the Mets won't be out of the pennant race until they're mathematically eliminated. A cliche, right?

Well Yogi had a different answer. "We're not out of it 'til we're out of it," he said. Now doesn't that make more sense? Isn't that straight to the point?

Or what about Yankee Stadium? Guys tried to play the outfield there late in the season and would come up with 14 hundred excuses why they had so much trouble. Yogi's explanation made the most sense.

"It gets late there early," he said.

Then there was time I asked him what he knew about managing.

"I observed a lot by watching," he said.

And he did. His record proves that. He won two pennants in 4½ years. How many managers have done that?

Casey Stengel says if Berra wasn't so smart how come those great pitchers like Allie Reynolds, Vic Raschi, Eddie Lopat and Whitey Ford always listened to him and did what he wanted?

I remember a game I was broadcasting. Yogi was in left and Mickey Mantle was in center. Yogi whistled to Mantle and started moving him around. After the game I asked Yogi why he was giving advice to Mantle, a great center fielder for so many years. You know what he told me. "Joey, Mickey didn't know that the guy hits there with two strikes."

Jack one-putts 'The Monster'

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Jack Nicklaus contrived a minor miracle of a par on the 16th hole, swept past faltering Bruce Crampton and Hale Irwin and, with a strong, three-under-par 67, vaulted into a four-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the 57th PGA National Championship.

Nicklaus, guning for his 16th major championship, cradled his blond head between his forearms, then saluted the massive gallery with a wave of his putter after his one-putt heroics on the famed "Monster" hole.

At 625 yards, it is the longest of all the long, leg-wearying acres that make up the famed, 7,180-yard Firestone Country Club course.

He made a five, a par, after hitting his tee shot unplayable, throwing his third into deep rough behind an elm tree then, boldly, flirting with trees and a small pond, flying his fourth to the green. Then he made a 3035 foot, downhill par putt that left him in firm command going into Sunday's final round of this last of the year's four major tests of golfing greatness.

It may have been the key hole of the golf tournament. As late as his fourth shot he was looking at a probable bogey—at best—and possibly much worse. He walked away with his imposing lead intact.

Nicklaus, who started play on the warm, sunny day four strokes back of Crampton, finished with a 54-hole total of 205, five under Firestone's demanding par and just one shot away from the all-time record for this tournament.

Crampton, the 39-year-old Australian veteran who established the 36-hole lead with his record 63, stumbled to a 75 but remained the only other man under par with a 209 total, four back of Jack and one under.

He and Irwin, a two-time winner this season who is gunning for a spot in the front rank of the game's greats, opened the gate for Nicklaus' move with their scrambling disasters early in the day.

Crampton's fall came by degrees. He bogeyed the 5th, 6th, 7th, 9th and 10th holes, a slow, gradual, agonizing decline that let Nicklaus make up eight shots in 10 holes.

Irwin's blew his chances with the speed of summer lightning. He took a horrendous, triple-bogey seven on the sixth hole, dropping from three under par to even.

His poor drive put him behind a tree. He tried to cut his second shot, with his driver, around the tree. But he hit it unplayable. After his penalty drop, he pitched his fourth short of the green. The shocked young man, the 1974 U.S. Open champion, reached the green in five and two-putted for the seven that all but killed his once hopeful chances.

He finished with a 73 and 210.

Tom Weiskopf scrambled his way to a round of par 70 that included three birdies and as many bogeys. He was at 211 for the tournament, one over and six back of Nicklaus, the man he beat in a playoff for the Canadian Open title.

"I'm not out of the tournament," said Long Tom, "but it would take an awful good round to beat him now."

He was tied with Ed Dougherty, a rookie tourist who has been playing the game only six years. Dougherty had a 72-211.

RECORD STEAL Dodger second baseman Dave Lopes hits the dirt at third base as he breaks the major league record for consecutive safe stolen bases with Wayne Garrett of the Mets covering the bag. Lopes ran his string to 32 with the record-breaking theft in the eighth inning of the Dodgers' 2-0 win over the Mets at Shea Stadium Saturday. See story, page 20.

Post 330 wins in marathon, 4-2

YOUNTVILLE — La Verne Post 330 continued its winning playoff ways here Saturday afternoon but it took a little longer than usual.

Jerry Baird's two-out double in the top of the 15th inning drove in a pair of La Verne baserunners to give the local American Legion baseball team a 4-2 victory over Eureka in the opening game of the state tournament at the Yountville Veterans Home field.

Ron Pickenpaugh and Brett Dody scored on Baird's game-winning hit, ending a string of five scoreless innings, and pitcher Gary Zakem disposed of the Eureka batters in the bottom of the frame for his sixth victory against two losses.

La Verne's pitching continued to shine, as starter Bill Bumstead allowed just one earned run on five singles through the regulation nine, and Zakem fired six scoreless overtime innings. Zakem yielded three singles and struck out six as Post 330 won its seventh straight playoff game.

The contest was forced into extra innings when Eureka scored an unearned run in the bottom of the ninth to knot the score at 2-2. An error, a sacrifice bunt and a walk put runners at first and second before a grounder eyed its way through the La Verne infield to produce the tying run.

Post 330 had taken a 2-1 lead in the top of the eighth inning when Bruce McNaught belted a solo home run over the left centerfield fence with one away.

McNaught, who went four-for-seven to lead La Verne's 11-hit attack, scored the first run of the game in the top of the first when he singled with two down, went to second as Wally Pitts was hit by a pitch and came across on the first of two singles by Bumstead.

Bumstead did not surrender a hit until the fourth inning. He held the opposition scoreless until the seventh when three straight Eureka singles produced a run.

Reliever Zakem encountered his scariest moment in the bottom of the 13th inning. A leadoff single, a sacrifice and a balk put a runner at third with just one out for Eureka.

After walking two batters intentionally, Zakem got the next hitter to roll a grounder to third baseman Dody, who forced the runner at the plate. Zakem retired the side on a comebacker to the mound.

Ralph Ortega will take the mound for La Verne today at 1 p.m. when the locals face Redwood City.

Rams rip Dallas, 35-7

LOS ANGELES (AP) — James Harris threw a 10-yard touchdown pass and mounted three touchdown drives in the first 33 minutes and the Los Angeles Rams went on to trounce Dallas 35-7 in National Football League Game preseason opener for both teams Saturday night.

With the Rams leading the National Football League contest 21-0, Harris' understudy, Ron Jaworski, took over for the second half and riddled the Cowboys defenses with his passes, completing six of eight passes for 115 yards and one touchdown.

Meanwhile, the Rams' defense throttled the Dallas offense, allowing the Cowboys to penetrate Los Angeles territory only once. That drive ended on the 10-yard line at the close of the second period when quarterback Roger Staubach's pass was intercepted in the end zone by Derreck Williams.

Dallas' only score came on a 29-yard interception return by rookie David Shaw in the third period.

The Rams took a 14-0 lead early in the second quarter running up the field almost at will as they scored the first two times they had the ball. On their first possession of the season, the Rams took the ball on the 19 and marched 81 yards in 13 plays with Bob Klein scoring on a 10-yard pass from Harris. The next time the Rams got the ball they marched 80 yards in 11 plays with Tony Baker scoring from the one.

As a crowd of 62,843 watched in Los Angeles Coliseum, a series of Rams rushers outgained the Cowboys on the ground 257 yards to 83 yards. The Rams also outpassed Dallas 199 yards to 73 yards to gain a total yardage advantage of 445 to 156.

Cullen Bryant, who scored on a 15-yard run in the fourth quarter, led the Ram rushers with nine carries for 42 yards, along with Harris, who gained 42 yards on four carries. Lawrence McCutcheon added 32 yards on five carries and John Cappelletti picked up 31 yards on eight carries for the Rams.

The Rams passing was divided between Harris and Jaworski. Harris competed seven of ten for 84 yards with no interceptions.

For Dallas the top rusher was Robert Newhouse, who gained 43 yards in nine carries.

Quarterback Staubach, who played about half the game, could complete only five of ten passes for 44 yards despite being allowed a lot of time to throw on many occasions.

The Cowboys' well-publicized Shotgun formation was used only once — in the first half — when Staubach lofted a pass 55 yards in the air over the fingertips of Golden Richards, the intended receiver.

After the Rams assumed their 14-0 lead in the first half, they struck quickly at 2:07 of the third quarter when Cappelletti scored on a two-yard run. The drive for the touchdown began at the Dallas 27 after Willie McGee returned the opening kickoff 70 yards to the 27 yard line.

Harris helped set up the touchdown with a key 17-yard pass to Harold Jackson.

Shaw then got the Cowboys on the scoreboard with his pass interception at 10:39 to make the score 21-7.

But Los Angeles came right back on Bryant's 15-yard run which came after a 69-yard drive aided by Jaworski's 41-yard pass to Jessie.

In the fourth quarter, Jessie closed out the scoring when he took a seven-yard pass from Jaworski in the final period.

Former champ shot, killed

NEW YORK (AP) — A former New York Golden Gloves featherweight boxing champion was shot to death by an unknown assailant after a street argument. His companion was in shock today at a hospital after being shot as the assailant fled.

Police identified the dead man as Victor Vaddy, 21, of New York City. He was shot once through the heart Thursday night outside a grocery store. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Lincoln Hospital.

NCAA tries to surmount economic woes

Against threats that the superpowers will walk out if too many cuts are made, the NCAA convenes this week a critical economic summit that will be asked to cut scholarships, coaching staffs and recruiting costs and thus save many colleges from athletic bankruptcy.

When the conference in Chicago is over, the games students play will be changed. Football and basketball will suffer some; the minor sports which account for no ticket sales may be shoved rapidly toward the intramural level.

Recession and inflation, combined with the trend that made the upper echelon of college athletics a multi-million dollar business, have left more than 80 per cent of the NCAA's 700 members deep in athletic red ink and strapped with orders from above to do something about it.

College presidents who didn't mind a $200,000 athletic deficit during the boom years of the 1960s now must balance budgets because the recession of the 1970s has cut government aid and private donations, and inflation has dramatically increased costs.

The chancellor of one major private university, who asked not to be identified, said, "If major cuts aren't made, we will be forced to get out of the intercollegiate athletic business. We're losing $300,000 a year on athletics and that cannot continue. It's either bite the bullet now or quit soon."

"All of higher education is facing a serious financial crisis, and intercollegiate athletics must assume its share of the burden," said Wayne Duke, commissioner of the Big Ten. "We need a concerted, dignified effort to restore sanity to financial conditions surrounding intercollegiate athletics."

Among the 73 economic amendments to be placed before the convention are a series of 20 proposals approved by the NCAA Council, the organization's most powerful group. Most of them received approval in a straw vote of athletic directors.

They would reduce the number of football scholarships from 105 to 90, cut basketball scholarships from 18 to 16, limit any school to seven assistant football coaches and one assistant basketball coach and cut the maximum number of scholarships in sports other than football and basketball from just over to 200 to 80.

Other proposals with broad support would eliminate the $15 monthly allowance which scholarship athletes now get would limit any college to two off-campus meetings with a recruit and would allow recruits to visit only four colleges before signing a scholarship.

Football travel squads would be limited to 48 players and basketball to 10. A school could only dress 60 players for a home football game and 13 for a basketball game. Schools would no longer supply their athletes with letter jackets and sweaters.

If approved, these measures would start football on a return to the one-platoon system in which athletes must play both offense and defense and continue a growing trend toward major cuts and, in some cases, elimination of minor sports which do not produce revenue.

The crisis point of the convention—and the trigger which could cause the major schools to seriously consider abandoning the NCAA—will come over three proposals that would force the superpowers to divide their television and bowl money with all schools.

The proposals are being made by Long Beach State President Stephen Horn and by the Pacific Coast Athletic Association. They would divide bowl and television money in such a way as to cost a school such as Oklahoma $650,000 or more of what it now gets for appearing on TV.

Penn State's athletic budget was in the black last year because the school's football team earned more than $1 million from its TV appearances and a bowl game. Without that money—most of which would be denied by the Long Beach proposals—Penn State's budget will be in the red this year.

These three proposals are the ones which have caused major conferences to study setting up their own athletic association, one that would separately negotiate with networks and bowl committees. If that happened, the NCAA would cease to exist on a major level.

Some schools and conferences were reported planning to try and stop the Long Beach proposals from even reaching the convention by claiming they were not properly drawn up.

"The membership's thinking has been sharply attuned to the financial emergency facing intercollegiate athletics," said Walter Byers, long-time executive director of the NCAA who proceeded to attack the Long Beach proposals.

"The one unfortunate development is that a few ill-conceived proposals, submitted at the 11th hour, are going to divert the discussions from costsaving measures to a

Aztecs nip Portland, 1-0

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) — Bobby Sibbold led the Los Angeles Aztecs to a 1-0 win over the Portland Timbers on Saturday, but the Aztecs' chances of making the playoffs depend on the Washington-Chicago game Sunday.

NCAA confab this week

broad reexamination of the purposes of the NCAA," Byers said.

"It seems foolhardy to believe that the financial problems of one institution ar going to be solved by reaching into the pocketbook of another institution, or that one conference can secure additional money by confiscating the funds of eight other conferences, but that is the issue presented by at least three proposals," he said.

The meetings open Monday when the NCAA Council begins three days of private meetings, some of which could result in probation for a number of schools for violating recruiting regulations.

Most major conferences will have private sessions on Wednesday, the key one being consideration by the Big Eight of another possible reprimand to Oklahoma for an alleged football recruiting violation.

The Sooners, picked No. 1 in last year's final Associated Press poll, are due to come off two years' probation this week. But the Big Eight has been considering a reprimand—possibly the withdrawal of some scholarships—because two Oklahoma players allegedly made a recruiting trip which violated NCAA rules.

Donohue sets record

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Mark Donohue flashed around the 2.66-mile Alabama International Motor Speedway trioval at 221.160 miles per hour today in a Porsche 917-30, shattering the world closed-course speed record.

Donohue had two laps over A.J. Foyt's previous record of 217.854 m.p.h., set in a Coyote Indianapolis-type car at this ultra-high speed Alabama track a year ago.

Donohue took a warm-up lap in the red and white, low-slung Porsche and turned a hot halflap before coming in for a quick check of the 1,100-horsepower, 12-cylinder engine.

He then chose to make his record attempt, despite raindrops falling over turn one. His first lap from a standing start was nearly 196 m.p.h., and he turned a lap at 220.027 m.p.h. before the record circuit.

Wings fly over the Sun, 54-22

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Billy Sadler and Steve Conley each ran for two touchdowns as the San Antonio Wings upset Southern California 54-22 before 21,000 World Football League fans Saturday night.

The Wings jumped in front and never trailed in a game that was so lopsided Sun Coach Tom Fears said, "We were lucky we were not behind 28 points by halftime."

The Wings tied WFL records with five touchdowns by rushing and with five action points in one game. San Antonio's David Ytnji also set a WFL record with an 87-yard punt.

The Wings led only 15-7 at halftime, but scored 31 points in the third quarter to put the contest out of Southern California's reach.

Sun quarterback Pat Haden threw for 313 yards and three touchdowns but Southern California lost the gains on 10 turnovers.

The victory left San Antonio undefeated in WFL season play with a 3-0 record, while Southern California is now 1-1.

English tempers still hot

WEMBLEY, England (AP) — The English League soccer season began Saturday where it left off last season—with violence, the violence Europeans call "the English disease."

The occasion was the Football Association's annual charity shield match at Webley between the league champions, Derby County and the FA Cup holders, West Ham United.

Derby won the match 2-0 with two first-half goals.

But towards the end, fans began fighting in the stands and beer cans were flying before police moved in to break it up. After the match there was more fighting outside the ground and police made five arrests.

Last year the charity shield match was marred when Liverpool and England striker Kevin Keegan and Leeds and Scottish captain Billy Bremner were sent off for fighting.

Last year's league season was plagued by violence on and off the field and British fans got a bad name in Europe when they were involved in violent incidents after travelling to the continent to support their home clubs.

Reflecting on Yogi's dismissal

Yogi knows baseball. There's no doubt about that.

That's why I knew he would make a good manager. He's got a lot of baseball smarts. And he still would be managing if a manager didn't have to be part public relations man and part psychologist.

The Cleon Jones thing really got to Yogi. He must have taken an awful lot to take that "me or him" stand. I honestly saw Yogi mad only three times. Each time as a kid.

He's a sensitive guy, particularly because he doesn't want to look bad in front of his kids. He thinks, "What will my kids think about this story of me, or this caricature of me?"

But he doesn't get mad. His attitude is, "It's okay with me, as long as it doesn't hurt anybody." For him to say that about Jones means someone had taken advantage once too often.

Birdie Tebbetts once told me he got paid one-half for winning, one-half for worrying and nothing for losing. There really isn't a hell of a lot of justice when a manager is fired.

I never could understand why Yogi wanted to manage. I tried to talk him out of taking the Mets job. I told him, "Look, everybody loves you. It's not real tough being a first base coach. As Whitey Ford says, 'All you have to do is remember to tell a guy who hits a double to turn left.'"

But Yogi wouldn't listen. "I gotta manage," he said.

Yogi was the kind of manager I liked. The best one I played for was Bill Meyer with Pittsburgh because he was patient and he understood. A cheerleader-type of manager falls down if he doesn't keep it up when the team's losing. If you're a cheerleader type, you better lead cheers for all 162 games. Otherwise it shows.

But above all Yogi is a patient man. If he said in 1973 that the Mets weren't out of it, he believed it. And because he acted accordingly, so did the team.

The best managers are the ones who are patient. There are 162 games in a season. Yogi understood that. To me, the best managers in recent times, Freddie Hutchinson, Walter Alston, Gil Hodges and Yogi Berra, all had that quality.

And Yogi has that and a lot more. When we were kids playing ball in St. Louis, Yogi would always be chosen No. 1.

In my book, that's where he is right now.

European Open title to Young

SUNNINGDALE, England (AP) — Donna Young holed a 60-yard chip for an eagle two at Sunningdale's 11th hole Saturday and went on to win the European Women's Open golf title.

The 30-yar-old professional from Los Angeles finished the 72-hole tournament with a total of 283, 13-under-par. She won a first prize of $11,000.

Sandra Palmer of Dallas was second, two strokes behind at 285. Chako Higuchi of Japan was third on 289.

Mrs. Young and Miss Palmer were racing neck and neck for the title when the Los Angeles golfer made the shot of the tournament at the 295-yard 11th hole.

Her tee shot was right in the middle of the fairway and came to rest on sloping ground.

"It was a downhill lie, and I thought it looked rather tough," Mrs. Young said. "I played it with a sand wedge and it went in the hole. I just couldn't believe it."

When the ball dropped in, she danced around in the fairway and hugged her caddie.

"I was just like a schoolkid out there," she said. "I was so excited I had to tell myself to calm down and take it easy.

Queen Mary Pro-Am dedicated to Gary Sanders

By PHIL ROCHE
PB Staff Writer

I had almost forgotten, but the late Gary Sanders was the defending champ in the up-coming $22,500 Long Beach Queen Mary tournament. So, tournament officials are honoring him this year in a special way.

The Pro-Am portion of the event will be dedicated to Sanders, 25, who died Aug. 1 of a massive brain hemorrhage.

The pro-am, a $2,800 event to be held Wednesday Sept. 17, brings together 33 pros and 99 amateurs in two best-ball competition. The 72-hole championship tournament continues Sept. 18-21 at El Dorado.

Tournament chairman Monty Blodgett said that all monies collected during the pro-am will be given to the Gary Sanders Memorial Fund which is in operation at his home course, Los Coyotes, in Buena Park.

There is no charge for the pro-am. Blodgett, however, hopes that those in attendance will make a donation to the fund.

Gary McCord, Sanders' closest friend on the PGA tour, said he is seeking sanction for a professional tournament at Los Coyotes to raise funds for the Sanders family.

McCord says he hopes to hold the event in late October or early November.

Pet Peeve in Golf. . . Looking forward to playing a round of a good golf course and finding all the tees moved up to where the ladies usually play. . . I have never been able to figure out just why there are so many temporary tees. Next time you build a golf course, construct wide, long tees.

For real distance golf club-throwing, it's hard to beat the fellow I saw at Serfas the ther day. He whipped his 3-wood a good 100 yards and it was only halted by a tree. I just stood there in amazement and I normally hate club-throwers, but I must admit h did it with skill.

Here are the recent results of Palm Lake Women's Club action:

Best back nine, Bea Jones, 1st, Helen Dement, 2nd.
Odd holes, Lillian Keniston, Ardy Monroe.
Low gross, Billie Christ; low net, Della McCuistion.
Odd holes, Marty Swanson, Billie Christ.
Best nine, Marty Swanson, Ady Monroe.

LOBBY EXHIBIT — Jack Wilson of Claremont looks over some of his oil paintings on exhibit this month in the Lobby Gallery of Pomona First Federal Savings & Loan Association, 399 N. Garey Ave., Pomona. He is a member of the Pomona Valley Art Association.

Wilson showing paintings

Four years ago Jack Wilson's children gave him an oil painting kit. Today he has more than 40 paintings in private collections.

An exhibition of Wilson's oils is being held this month in the Lobby Gallery of the Pomona First Federal Savings & Loan Association, 399 N. Garey Ave., Pomona.

The Claremont artist received some training at the Claremont High School adult education program and had a class with Allen Blizzard at Scripps College, but he is largely self-taught.

Wilson specializes in miniature oils, but works in other media. Two of his metal sculptures are on view at the Claremont Police Department, and some of his miniatures are being exhibited at the gallery of the Pomona Valley Art Association, 300 S. Park Ave., Pomona. He is a member of the association.

LINCOLN RETURNS — In observance of the Bicentennial, Disneyland has reactivated the Audio-Animatronics creation of "Great Moments with Mr. Lincoln," as a feature of Main Street's "The Walt Disney Story." The patriotic theme is carried out at the Anaheim amusement park with a daily pageant, "America on Parade," and nightly red, white and blue fireworks.

Safe-crackers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elliott Gould and James Caan will star in "Harry and Walter Go to New York," a film about a pair of safe-crackers in Manhattan of the 1890's.

Columbia pictures has cast the pair as vaudevillians who turn to crime, with Michael Caine as an expert who teaches them how to crack safes.

'The Fantasticks'

Cal Poly plans musical

The drama department of Cal Poly will present the musical, "The Fantasticks," in the University Theater at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and Aug. 21-23.

The audience will be seated on the stage with the performers, reducing the theater capacity to 150. Tickets are $2.

With the lyrics and libretto by Tom Jones and music by Harvey Schmidt, "The Fantasticks" tells a simple, poetic love story in song. Beneath the gaiety and wistfulness of its dialogue and music is the underlying message of seasonal rebirth — broadly interpreted as "the necessity of winter to insure the rebirth of spring" and more personally as the necessity of understanding pain to appreciate the beauty of living. The variations on the love story theme center around the fathers of a young lady (Luisa) and a young man (Matt) who arrange to have their offspring fall in love with each other by pretending to keep them apart.

The cast is made up of Keith Nagy, Matt; Lynn Lundquist, Luisa; Lew Crouse and Scott Poindexter, the fathers; Barry Moore, El Gallo; David Miller, Henery Albertson; Brian Gale, Mortimer, and Kristen Foskett, Mute.

Reservations can be made at 598-4546.

Jazz quintet at Barnsdall

The Clare Fischer Yamaha Quintet will present a free jazz concert at Barnsdall Park, Los Angeles, at 4:30 p.m. next Sunday.

This is one of the 14th annual summer series of Concerts on the Green presented, at no admission charge, by the Bureau of Music, a division of the Los Angeles Municipal Arts Department.

The quintet members are busy musicians individually as well as in the group. Fischer, who has his master's degree in music, came to Los Angeles from Michigan with the HiLos in 1957 and has composed and played in concerts and for motion pictures ever since.

Prices climb: only a taste of things to come?

By LEE MITGANG
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Reports of renewed inflation, accompanied by a falling stock market, troubled bond market and rising interest rates, arrived this past week.

Scoring its second largest jump this year, the government reported its July wholesale price index rose at a 14.4 per cent annually adjusted rate, and economists said that was only a taste of things to come.

The July figures took into account some, but not all, of the inflationary effects of the recent shipments of U.S. grain to the Soviet Union. They did not include a 3-cent-a-gallon rise in wholesale gasoline prices last month nor a series of recent aluminum and steel price increases.

These will likely show up in the coming months' price statistics, economists say, taking wholesale price increases well above the current 12-month average of 8.7 per cent.

Already the effects of the latest inflation round have shown on the financial markets which often take inflation even harder than business downturns.

The Dow Jones industrial average, most widely followed indicator of the New York Stock Exchange, declined 8.76 to 817.74, its sixth weekly drop in a row. Big Board volume dwindled to yearly low levels, indicating a growing concern on Wall Street that the economic recovery may be in jeopardy if inflation flares up again for a prolonged period, as many now fear.

On the bond market, six major companies including Consolidated Edison Co. of N.Y. postponed scheduled bond offerings, citing the soaring interest rates they would have to pay investors.

New York's First National City Bank raised its prime rate another quarter-point to 7¾ per cent on Friday, meaning that bank borrowing became that much more expensive for corporations struggling to recover from the recession.

U.S. Steel Corp. announced Friday price changes which it said would amount to an overall increase of 3.8 per cent in its steel mill products.

Earlier in the week, Armco Steel Corp. and Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp. posted a 9 per cent price hike on their fat-rolled products used in making cars and a number of other consumer goods, but immediately following U.S. Steel's smaller price increase, both canceled the proposed price boost "until further notice."

MARKET DIPS — The Dow Jones industrial average closed at 817.74 Friday, down 8.76 from the week before. The Associated Press averaged closed at 258.5, down 6.2 over the same period. Brokers blamed the rise in interest rates and signs of renewed inflation.

Will big bond buyers return?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The big banks and insurance companies that ordinarily buy vast volumes of tax-exempt bonds, which finance state and municipal governments, have been withdrawing from the market in recent years.

Whether they return as buyers over the next few months will probably determine how successful some cities and states are in raising much-needed funds. Expectations are that they will return.

Figures show, however, that commercial banks and fire and casualty insurance companies have sharply curtailed their purchases over the past five years.

In 1970, for example, commercial banks bought $10.7 billion of state and local securities, or 95 per cent of the net purchases. In each year since then the percentage has dropped, reaching only 24.5 per cent in 1974.

The insurers, who took more than 33 per cent of net purchases in 1972, accounted for only 6.4 per cent last year. In 1972 they were net buyers of $4.8 billion of state and local securities; last year they bought only $1.1 billion. Householders, meanwhile, have replaced them as the major factor in the market, accounting for 69.2 per cent of net purchases in 1974, and remaining an important factor this year.

By contrast, households in both 1970 and 1971 were net sellers rather than buyers. In 1972 this sector increased its purchases to 6.8 per cent of the entire market, and to 31.6 per cent in 1973.

In all, the household sector bought $11.7 billion worth of taxexempt municipal bonds in 1974. This figure, as did the preceding ones, came from a study by the investment banking firm of Smith, Barney & Co., based on Federal Reserve reports.

The trend, which is reported also in a commentary by Bankers Trust Co., is causing some worry in financial circles. Already it is probably a big factor in forcing some municipal borrowing costs to record high levels and in reducing the liquidity — or buy-sell activity of the market.

Comments Business Week's Magazine: "That is an unnerving prospect at a time when the market is already frantic over the possibility of a New York City default on $74' million in short term notes maturing Aug. 22."

Many reasons are given for reduction of activity by the big banks and insurers.

Municipal financial troubles are, of course, high on the list. Institutional researchers were aware of the declining financial stability of some cities long before the full extent of the New York City crisis became known.

Both banks and insurers had their own internal probelms too.

The banks have suffered a deterioration of their investment portfolios both in 1974 and this year and thus have been cautious inestors. Added to this problem are substantial loan losses.

One consequence of this is to reduce the need by banks for ways to cut taxes. Tax-exempts serve that function, but losses cut taxes just as well.

Added to these factors is the desire by banks to remain liquid — to keep enough funds on hand to be able to service other customers. A tight money policy by the Federal Reserve could be costly to them if their funds are already committed.

The fire and casualty insurance companies have been taking their licks too, suffering from what they consider to be depressed earnings and investment losses. As with individuals, this depresses their willingness and ability to be active in municipal markets.

Despite their reduced activity in municipal markets over the past few years, both insurers and bankers are expected to return soon if they get their internal problems corrected.

Will householders remain big buyers? That cannot be foretold. They are much more sophisticated today than just 10 years ago. They recognize that yields on municipals are much better than bank interest. And they have newly formed municipal bond funds to facilitate their investments.

At the same time some investment advisory services have been warning them to avoid the municipal market. As one put it this week: "Mistrust of all municipal dept obligations is spreading rapidly ..."

RELAXED AT HOME — A resident relaxes in her new townhome at Palatine Hills which overlooks the Walnut Valley. The two and three bedroom homes are priced from $35,450.

Palatine Hills overlooks valley

Palatine Hills is a new community of townhomes overlooking the Walnut Valley which includes features usually associated with single family homes, said N. B. Gregg, builder of the $5 million development.

The homes, priced from $35,450, have two and three bedrooms and two or 2½ bathrooms. All are air conditioned.

Buyers have their selection of four different floorplans in one and two story designs and private patios or atriums.

Residents have use of a swimming pool, clubhouse, and tennis court. All landscaping, resort amenities and exteriors of the townhomes are maintained by professional workers under direction of the homeowners association.

The community also features a storage yard for boats, trailers and recreation vehicles belonging to the residents. Natural woodland area have been reserved with the project.

The homes include wall-to-wall shag carpeting in the living rooms, dining rooms and all bedrooms, vinyl tile in the kitchen and bathrooms, beamed cathedral ceilings, tiled entry and insulation of walls and ceilings.

The kitchens have double ovens, ranges, dishwashers, and garbage disposals. Plumbing for ice-maker refrigerators have been installed and most plans have a patio service window from the kitchen to an outdoor dining counter.

Each townhome has a double garage with patio access. Garages have space for individual washer and dryer appliances with outlets for gas or electricity.

Furnished models are open daily. To reach the development, persons may take the Pomona Freeway to the Nogales Street offramp, go south to Colima Road, turn left to the Brea Canyon Cut-Off Road, turn right and travel a half mile to the homes.

From the Orange Freeway, persons may take the Diamond Bar Boulevard offramp which turns into the Brea Canyon Cut-Off Road and continue to the project.

Laos rejects U.S. stamps

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The Laotian government, dominated by the pro-Communist Pathet Lao, has rejected a postage stamp series depicting 12 American presidents and designed to commemorate the U.S. Bicentennial.

Veterans hospital built to withstand quakes

The combination of a structural steel frame and a steel reinforced shear wall system meeting stringent earthquake code requirements is employed in the design of a new 500-bed Veterans Administration hospital under construction in Loma Linda.

Use of these engineering techniques is intended to insure the building will not only structurally withstand major earthquake but also remain optional.

The new hospital is being built to replace the veterans hospital in San Fernando destroyed in a 1971 earthquake. When the new hospital is completed in 1977, veterans' medical care in the Riverside and San Bernardino counties will be improved greatly.

The building's 7,000-ton steel frame was fabricated at Bethlehem Steel Corp.'s Torrance plant.

The four-story, low profile structure measures 360 by 432 feet and has four interior light wells in its upper two levels. Principal supporting columns are 14-inch wide flange shapes varying in weight from 55 to 130 pounds per foot.

Horizontal forces are resisted by reinforced concrete shear walls 12 to 24 inches thick backed up by a moment resisting steel frame. Steel shear connectors and interlocking reinforcing bars attach the concrete walls to the structural steel frame.

Another interesting feature is the building's interstitial framing system. Interstitial framing provides an 8-foot space between the ceiling of one level and the floor of the level above, so that changes in mechanical equipment, plumbing or electrical wiring can be made easily. Steel hanger rods, ¾ and ⅞ inch in diameter, support the inter-floor "platforms."

The new hospital, situated on a 34-acre site, is one mile east of the Loma Linda Universtiy Medical School. A sharing program, whereby the hospital will provide dental training facilities for medical school students as well as offer them the use of classrooms, laboratories and a 300-seat auditorium, has been established by the hospital and medical school staffs.

The hospital will nestle in a parklike setting which will include ponds, bridges, waterfalls, outdoor activity areas and an emergency helicopter landing pad. Parking facilities for 800 cars will be provided.

The hospital will be built in two phases. The first phase consists of site grading and construction of foundations and the main structure. Installations of exterior walls and windows and electrical, mechanical and life-support systems will be accomplished in the second phase.

In addition to the general medical and surgical in-patient programs by the new hospital, there will be specialized in-patient programs for respiratory, coronary, physical rehabilitation, psychiatry, neurology, hemodialysis and nursing home care.

Major departments include radiology, surgery and a clinical laboratory. The radiology department has 14 diagnostic procedure rooms. There are five operatories in surgery.

The comprehensive outpatient program will accommodate more than 100,000 outpatient visits a year. Separate laboratory and radiology units have been provided exclusively for this program. There is also a research facility that will provide laboratories and associated support spaces.

Outpatient services, a 60-bed nursing home, processing activities, a common support area for research as well as reception and supply-receiving areas are located on the hospital's first floor. The second, third and fourth floors contain various nursing functions, each located near associated patient support functions on the same floor.

The horizontal relationship of patient beds to patient support will minimize the reliance by patients and hospital personnel on elevators. Research and administrative activities are situated on all upper floors. The second floor accommodates all physical rehabilitation and psychiatric activity. Surgical activity is on the third floor and medical activity on the fourth.

Movement of supplies and materials within the hospital is accomplished by automated transport systems utilizing motorized carts, elevators, dumbwaiters and pneumatic tubes.

Techniques used to save energy

There are certain energy-saving techniques, materials and appliances that can save home owners thousands of dollars in energy costs over the years, said Walter Arnold, president of the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors.

"And these days, when experts are predicting that the cost of energy will continue to rise, it's especially important that consumers are aware of ways to conserve energy.

"If you're planning to buy a home, as a Realtor I can assure you that the following checklist will assist you in making the most energy conserving purchase. And if you're planning to remodel your present home, keep the following information in mind," he added.

— An air conditioner compressor should be shaded, particularly at noon, by the house, trees, garage or carport.

— Added insulation, espcially in attic areas, will keep homes warmer in winter and cooler in summer.

— Weatherstripping around doors and windows will help to eliminate drafts and energy-wasting cold and heat.

— Heating and cooling equipment should be no larger than the home requires. Over-sized equipment means less efficiency.

— A forced warm air furnace should be equipped with filters that can be reached and changed easily. Clogged or dirty filters substantially reduce fuel efficiency for both heating and cooling.

— a humidifier should be attached to the heating system. Higher humidity makes people feel more comfortable at lower temperatures.

— The control of a hot water heater should be set for 120 degrees. If it's a gas water heater, make sure it has modulating capacities. Two burners are more efficient than single burners.

Builders seeking housing summit

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Asociation of Home Builders has charged the nation's economic policy makers have been "consistently wrong" in their judgements of a recovery for housing. It urges President Ford to call a housing economic summit meeting to relieve the "current intolerable situation."

NAHB President J. S. Norman Jr., of Houston, issued a formal statement adopted by the NAHB Executive Committee calling attention to the "bleak situation" of housing today — a clear signal to the policy makers that they have been "continually and consistently misreading basic factors in what will happen to housing."

Norman stated that housing starts in June were down to a 1,078,000 annual rate, 5 percent below May and that the total housing starts for the first six months of this year — 512,900 units — was the lowest six month figure in 28 years.

He also pointed out that unemployment in the construction trades was at more than a 20 per cent rate, almost triple the national average. And unemployment in residential construction is double that of construction generally — more than 40 per cent.

"We urge the President to call immediately a housing economic summit meeting to develop and implement quickly the means to relieve the current intolerable housing situation and to set housing on a forward course that will help to lift the general economy," Norman said. The meeting would include representatives of government, Congress, and the consumer, as well as of the housing industry.

While praising President Ford for his "moral leadership" and his efforts to cope with the energy crisis and war threats, the statement said that the Administration's efforts in the economic field relating to housing matters, "undertaken under ill-advised and totally mistaken counsel of his economic strategists, have been less than successful." There are no signs of any vigorous economic recovery "despite statements to the contrary from high economic sources," the statement said.

The NAHB statement said that the Ford Administration has carried on from the past the "mistaken and misdirected policies and the ineffectual HUD administration that have plunged housing into its deepest recession, denied opportunities for millions of American families to obtain decent housing.

No recession in real estate

"There has never been a recession in real estate, only a lack of money to finance purchases," said Herbert Hawkins, president of Herbert Hawkins Realtors.

"Contrary to the general economy, the real estate industry has never lacked in demand for housing. It has only been the government's effort to control inflation by creating a tight money market that has affected real estate activity.

"Property values in most areas have outpaced the general inflationary spiral and provide better returns than most other investments."

While unemployment is high in most industries, Hawkins said job opportunities in the real estate industry are growing and the recruiting of new salespeople has been at an all-time high.

His licensing schools in Orange County, San Fernando Valley, San Diego and San Gabriel Valley have a large increase in students, he added.

Hawkins also reported his company will soon pass the 1,000-associated mark as a projected four or five new offices are added each month.

"Many well qualified people are turning from large corporate positions to enter the real estate business which not only offers them a good income but provides an opportunity to invest in the business in which they work and accumulate a real estate," he said.

"We have seen a tremendous increase in the number of women coming into the real estate business and several of our women associates are among the sales leaders of the company. One of our newly-licensed women recently earned over $11,000 in one month."

Personal earnings by Hawkins sales associates are at an all-time high. Last month, over 50 salespeople earned over $2,000. Expanded employment opportunities also exist in all areas of company operations and their affiliated escrow, mortgage, insurance and termite companies.

Buyers enjoy hillside

A popular feature of the Claraboya Homes in Claremont is the community's distinctive hillside nature, said Ronnie Armstrong, marketing director for Armstrong Development Corp.

"Every home here has been built to take full advantage of the picturesque views these sites have to offer. Many of the homeowners have remarked there is something very nearly regal about the hillside lifestyle here," she added.

The project's final 15 homes are currently under construction.

She also noted the hillside lots provide owners an opportunity to be creative when landscaping. "Many residents have done some very beautiful and highly unusual things with both the front and rear yards. It seems to add the final touch to what we feel are some of the highest quality homes in the valley."

Priced from $76,500, the homes are available in three floor plans and nine exteriors. They range from 2,219 to 2,581 square feet in living area. Homes are built on lots which have a minimum of a half acre in size.

The homes feature sunken living rooms, formal dining rooms, separate family rooms, wet bars, wood-burning fireplaces, intercom systems and indoor plantings. The large master bedroom suites include sunken Roman tubs, private dressing areas, walk-in closets and mirrored wardrobes.

The kitchens have built-in self cleaning ovens, ranges, dishwashers, vinyl flooring, lunimous overhead lighting and full pantries.

Each home also has central refrigerated air conditioning, three car garage and separate laundry room.

Meeting to have speaker

Gordon E. Eaton, regional deputy with the state contractors license board, will be speaker at the Apartment Association, Mt. Baldy Area monthly meeting on Wednesday.

The program, starting at 7:30 p.m., will be held at the Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association building, Foothill and Indian Hill boulevards, Claremont.

His topic will be "How to Tell the Difference Between Contractors and Employes."

Vic Tessier, association attorney, will also conduct the regular "problem clinic." the public is invited.

The U.S. Dept. of HUD OFFERS YOU Outstanding Real Estate Values

TO BE SOLD: AS IS ALL CASH NO WARRANTY NO FHA INSURANCE

IMPORTANT INSTRUCTIONS: READ CAREFULLY!

Deposit of $500.00 on all properties upon acceptance of offer. Damages for failure of performance would be extremely difficult to determine in the event buyer fails to comply with all terms of the accepted offer. It is for this reason mutually understood and agreed that HUD shall retain the successful bidder's deposit as liquidated damages and as HUD's sole remedy against buyer. However, if the sale is rejected by HUD, the deposit will be refunded.

BIDS MUST BE SEALED AND THE DATE AND PROPERTY ADDRESS MUST BE PLACED ON THE OUTSIDE OF THE ENVELOPE. BID FORM (9551) MUST SHOW ADDRESS BY HOUSE NUMBER, STREET, CITY AND ZIP CODE. HUD reserves the right to withdraw or reject any or all offers at its discretion prior to the close of escrow. All sales must close within 30 days from date of bid and cannot be conditioned upon future financing availability, including VA. Time is of the essence. No discount points or origination fees will be paid on all cash sales. After purchase no one is to enter upon the property for purpose of repairs or rehabilitation until escrow is closed and deed is recorded.

HUD does not warrant habitability of premises or compliance with local building codes. The contract of sale on the following homes will contain a statement to the express effect that the property may not meet local or state building or housing codes; that HUD assumes no responsibility for compliance in connection with sale. The appropriate local building department will be notified of the sale and the condition of the property. The contract of sale shall note any known deficiencies or code violations found to exist at the time of sale closing. All additions, changes, and conditions noted on the contract of sale will be acknowledged by the signature of the buyer(s). HUD will assure that the requirements of the Lead Base Paint Act will be met prior to closing. Such action will be a contingency of the sale and may alter the appearance or physical condition of the property subsequent to this listing for sale.

ANY ALARM SYSTEMS AND ALARM WIRING ARE TO REMAIN THE PROPERTY OF HUD AND ARE NOT INCLUDED IN THE SALE.

DO NOT SUBMIT CASHIER'S CHECKS WITH BID. UPON NOTIFICATION OF HIGH BID, SUBMIT $500.00 CASHIER'S CHECK, COMPLETE AND ACCEPTABLE CONTRACT (2384) AND ATTACHMENTS. ALL CHECKS MUST BE MADE PAYABLE TO HUD.

THE GOVERNMENT WILL HOLD A SEALED BID SALE ON THE PROPERTIES LISTED BELOW ON FRIDAY, AUGUST 21, 1975 AT 9 A.M.

REGENCY ROOM, SHERATON-WEST HOTEL
2961 WILSHIRE BLVD., LOS ANGELES, CA.

Prior to the date of opening, bids must be submitted to HUD, Room 414, 2500 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, Ca. 90057. On the Bid Opening date, bids will be accepted at the Regency Room UNTIL 9:00 a.m. Bids will not be accepted after that time. All bids must be submitted by a Real Estate Broker.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

MARK ROBERTS OF HEADLAND, AL, ASKS: "HOW DID HANDSHAKING BEGIN?"

WHEN WE SHAKE HANDS WE ARE CARRYING ON AN ANCIENT CUSTOM. THE HANDSHAKE PROBABLY BEGAN IN THE DANGEROUS DAYS WHEN MEN CARRIED WEAPONS TO FIGHT ENEMIES. WHEN TWO MEN MET WHO WANTED TO BE FRIENDLY, EACH HELD OUT HIS RIGHT HAND — THE WEAPON HAND — AS A SIGN THAT THEY WERE NOT READY TO FIGHT. THEY SHOOK HANDS TO SHOW THAT THEY COULD TRUST EACH OTHER NOT TO USE A WEAPON.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — If one sews a lot, it's a nuisance to have to put the sewing machine away constantly. A tyepriter cover makes an ideal cover-up. — GERTRUDE.

© 1975 by NEA, Inc.

DEAR POLLY — Those who are putting in gardens next year will do well to use their garden hoe as a measuring stick. Paint one, two and three-foot lengths on the handle with bright red paint. — DOROTHY.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, % this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — I want to pass on my secret for sealing jars. After trying all the gadgets, I tried putting on rubber household gloves (heavy duty), with jersey linings and rough palms. They work beautifully, as one hand holds the jar firmly while being protected from heat and the other turns the lid. (This also works when opening jars.) — MRS. J.M.

DEAR POLLY — If a tag with washing instructions comes with a garment, I put the tag on the hanger. No searching for instructions at laundry time! — HELEN.

(POLLY'S NOTE: Write garment color or other identification on the tag, or you could ruin a garment placed on the wrong hanger!)

DEAR POLLY — When my cups are stained from coffee I wet them with vinegar, dip a damp cloth in salt and rub the stains away. — KATIE.

DEAR POLLY — Like everything else, mats for pictures are so expensive. While painting the den I freshened my pictures by painting the mats with a coat of flat paint to match the walls. This gave them a completely new look. — CATHERINE.

DEAR POLLY — I fill an empty, clean nail polish bottle with glue and the small brush attached to the top makes it easy to spread. No mess — and the glue won't dry out. — ANN.

DEAR POLLY — Recently, one leg on my favorite footstool broke off. I removed the other three legs and use the seat in the car for those youngsters too big for an infant's seat but too short to be able to see out the window. It's also ideal for use on a regular chair, at the table. — MARY F.

'TWO FACES OF EURE'

Wesley Eure, 18, may well be Hollywood's only actor who is going into his second season as a featured player simultaneously in two television series. Both are on NBC. On Mondays through Fridays Wesley plays Michael Horton on the daytime dramatic serial Days of Our Lives (12:30-1:30PM). On Saturday mornings he can be seen on the science-fiction adventure series Land of the Lost as Will Marshall, one of three Americans stranded on a prehistoric continent.

Days of Our Lives is in production 52 weeks per year. When Land of the Lost also is in production, Wesley Eure is busy. "I work on 'Days' from 6:30 in the morning to 12:30 and on 'Lost' from 1:30 to about 8:30 in the evening. How do I cope with this? Well, once in a while I feel tired enough to call off my nightly date." Wesley, as stated above, is only 18. A child of divorced parents, he was born in Baton Rouge, La., but lived in many places as he traveled with his mother, a psychologist. He was 16 and living in Las Vegas when he met the Robert Goulets. They hired him to baby-sit and help drive when they moved out on tour with the musical, "I Do, I Do." When the tour ended, Wesley had finished high school and decided to stay in New York and attempt a show business career. The attempt paid off—bigger than Wesley Eure ever expected.

'COOL AND IN CONTROL'

It's been three years since Adrienne Barbeau left her hit Broadway play, "Grease," (with a Tony Award nomination and a Theatre World Award for her efforts) to return to California (she was born in Sacramento and grew up in San Jose) and a regular role as 'Carol' in the successful CBS comedy series, 'Maude,' (Mondays, 9:30PM) and she doesn't regret it a bit. She has fallen in love with the California lifestyle all over again and loves her newly-purchased home in the Hollywood hills, fifteen minutes via Sunset Boulevard to the studio, which she travels in her diesel-powered Mercedes.

A travel-bug since high school, when she toured the Far East with a United States-sponsored San Jose Light Opera Company troupe, Ms. Barbeau spends a lot of time between taping sessions flying around the country on promotion trips for the series and appearing on television game and talk shows, which she loves.

Already at work on the fourth season of 'Maude', Ms. Barbeau is looking forward to movie roles sometime in the future, but she's cool and in control. When the next "big break" comes along she'll be ready for it.

'HARTMAN STAYS IN SHAPE'

The grass on the high school practice field was still wet from early-morning dew when a tall, lanky figure in a sweatsuit loped onto the oval quarter-mile track to begin his run. Actor David Hartman started another day. "I'm in good shape," said David recently. The line didn't come across as boastful as it would perhaps from a muscle-flexer in a tailored T-shirt. Rather, it was a statement of fact, simply describing his condition.

"But, boy, do I pay the price," he laughs. "Running has to be the toughest, if not the most boring physical activity, known to man unless you're in competition at the Olympics." Hartman, who stretches out to 6-feet-5 and weighs a lean 200 pounds, is not the happiest jogger in town. "But it is really the only activity that does it all for you," said the star of NBC's Lucas Tanner series (Wednesdays, 9PM).

"It not only helps work off excess weight, it tones the muscles and most importantly exercises the heart by pumping all that blood through your system," added David, who tries to do at least one-and-a-half miles a day at a school near his home in Hollywood Hills, Calif. It's not a coincidence that Lucas Tanner, the suburban high school teacher, is seen jogging or working out to some extent in most segments of the series.

"First of all," explained Hartman, "we really are not reaching at all to have him doing this sort of thing in the scripts. He's an active guy, a former pro athlete who would certainly be accustomed to such physical activity.

As a matter of fact, it does appear that David is rather proud that Lucas is the sort of guy who subscribes to such a regimen. "I don't mean to make more of this than it is," says David, "but there is something about relatively insignificant touches like this that go into the makeup of a character on the screen. Often they have nothing at all to do with the plot—they certainly aren't story points —but they do serve to add needed color to a character."

Besides, David has always felt that television should enlighten as well as entertain. He says: "Tanner's preoccupation with good health, body conditioning and exercise might encourage some of those viewers out there to consider it. Who knows? It may serve a practical purpose for them as well as an artistic one for us.

'CHINESE PRIME MINISTER'

"The Chinese Prime Minister," starring Dame Judith Anderson in Enid Bagnold's witty, elegant study of the nature and promise of growing old, will be reprised on Hollywood Television Theatre, Saturday (Aug. 16) at 9PM on KCET, Channel 28. Dame Judith portrays "She," an aging, retiring actress who wishes she could age with grace and dignity, like an elder statesman — a Chinese prime minister, respected for both his age and wisdom.

In the three-act comedy centering around her 70th birthday, She lives rather unhappily with her two sons Oliver (Peter Coffield) and Tarver (Richard Clarke) and their wives Roxane (Kathleen Miller) and Alice (Elayne Heilveil). Although no one believes the old butler, Bent (Don McHenry), when he announces telephone calls from her supposedly dead husband. Sir Gregory (Stephen Elliott), he does eventually show up after a 20-year absence. Through it all, She tries not to lose her identity in a benign old age and strives for freedom from her career, family and demands of society.

Dame Judith, at 76, America's most famous classical stage actress, says of the play: "I've done comedy scenes in plays, but never a whole play that's basically comedic. I was very tremulous about doing it. I love Enid Bagnold. She's 84, still writes plays and walks around in her bare feet. The woman in the play is Bagnold, and part of her is me, too."

CLOSE-UP

BEN VEREEN . . . COMIN' AT YA

Ben Vereen is a little guy; he says he's five-feet-nine inches tall, but five-foot-seven is a liberal figure. He has a stretchy, jaunty, bouncy, rubber-hips quality. He is athletic, more Gene Kelly than Fred Astaire, though he could turn on a bit of that old smoothy Astaire, too. Vereen, who stars in his own summer series on NBC Thursdays at 8PM, says "my roots are modern dance and I have branched out into jazz and ballet, so I guess I'd be called modern dance ballet."

Jamie Rogers, the choreographer of Vereen's nightclub act and co-producer (with Gene McAvoy) of the TV series, says "Ben's got a tremendous animalistic quality, a charisma that's magnetic. He's adaptive; he has a flexible attitude." Ben Vereen, at age 28, is being called a superstar . . . "whatever that is," he says. "I don't even know how to define that. I don't know if there is a such a creature. I'm just an actor trying to stay employed. That's all I'm trying to do, and I'm trying to do a good job.

"It's exciting that people react to me now, particularly those in the industry. I guess it's the reward for hard work and dedication," adds Vereen. "Show business is a rough business because it's not a stable business. You've got to think 'where are you going to be employed next'. Sometimes you have to take gigs that you don't particularly want to take, but you take them because maybe there's somebody who is going to come out and see me, and that's one more person that I'll have touched."

Vereen is looking forward "to touching" so many more people via the television show. "The series is fantastic," notes Vereen with a simple dance step for emphasis. "I can communicate with so many more people. That's important to me. That's why interviewers are so vital. Because through you, I communicate with the people, which is what it's all about."

What his words of communication to the TV audience will be, Vereen wasn't quite sure. He was sure, though, that he's incorporating some of the fun moments of his life . . . "recalling 'Pippin' or telling about Bert Williams (a long-dead black comedian to whom Vereen pays tribute, in blackface, in his nightclub act) or taking them back to where I lived as a kid." For the record, Vereen was born in Miami and raised in Brooklyn, the son of a laborer in a paint factory and a maid in Broadway theatres. He joined a Baptist choir when he was age four. His father was a deacon in the church, so it wasn't much later that Vereen started to solo.

"I used to get up and testify a lot," he recalls. "I discovered I had a way with words. I wanted to do more with my talent than testify. I remember, as if it were yesterday, auditioning for New York's High School of the Performing Arts and getting in because they were short of male dancers." Graduation ended Vereen's dream world of the stage. For the ensuing six months he studied for the ministry but found being away from the stage meant loneliness. But going back to it also meant odd jobs, and many times, no jobs.

"My big break, as it's termed in show business, came when I landed the job as a chorus boy in Broadway's 'Sweet Charity.' It was a great show," laughs Vereen, "but I wasn't happy being in the background. But that was the time I pretty much decided to go ahead and do the trip. I found that there was a lot to be learned in this business.

"Until 'Sweet Charity' I didn't see any future in show business for myself. But once I got with Juliet Prowse and Bob Fosse and saw how hard they worked, it gave me the taste I needed. I started working at it for the value of making it. Making it, for the value of work. That's one of today's biggest problems. Everyone talks about making it, and forgets you have to work for it, also. I feel I've worked my way to the television show. 'Hair' and 'Jesus Christ Superstar' followed, and then came 'Pippin.' My dreams became reality then. I was in front, the leading player."

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, JR.

How do you explain your sex appeal? Your father turned my mother on and you turn me on, but my husband says he's better looking than you are.—Helen W., Washington, D.C.

● I can only tell you what a woman told me once—because I certainly see no special sex appeal in myself. She said it was all in the voice. A woman is emotionally affected by a man's voice, whereas a man is affected by what he sees. A woman likes to close her eyes and listen to the words a man is murmuring in her ear, and it doesn't matter what he looks like if the sound is romantic to her. I got this voice from listening to my father and from having been dragged through some good British schools. But my voice doesn't turn on every woman—some would only get goose bumps listening to Stanley Kowalski.

FOR JULIET PROWSE

I know performers forget lines, but do dancers ever forget steps?—P.N.N., Chattanooga, Tenn.

● Yes. But it's easier to ad lib with your feet than with your mouth! It happened to me once, when Nikita Khrushchev watched us film "Can Can" during his Hollywood visit. Reports said he was shocked by our decadent dancing. Not so. I was watching him (that's why I missed my step) and he was grinning from ear to ear. I think his wife was shocked and she ordered him to express more disapproval.

FOR ERMA BOMBECK, columnist

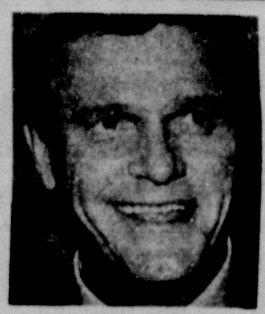
Do you think parents are too permissive these days? How would you handle a maverick?—Maryellen Wallace, Los Angeles, Calif.

● Not so much permissive as terrified. My son threatened to live at home if he had to get his hair cut. Today people mistake him for Ali MacGraw. As for a maverick, I had one of those. Married him off at ten.

FOR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

Do you have a favorite family trip?—K.S., Atlanta, Ga.

● Yes. We retraced our honeymoon steps with our daughter when she was a teenager. We spent a few days in the Gaspé Peninsula, stopping at every place we visited all those years ago. A lot of scenes were familiar to her from snapshots. She was fascinated by the whole thing, and we got a vicarious thrill because of her pleasure. For us, it was a second honeymoon. Our third will be with our grandchildren.



FOR EDDY ARNOLD

Do you ever miss the simple life you once had as a farm boy?—Christine Stansell, Jackson, Tenn.

● No. To say I do would be saying that I miss going to the outdoor toilet in the wintertime or taking a bath once a week in the washtub.

FOR SHECKY GREENE

What's your opinion of Women's Lib?—F. Lee, Hamilton, Ohio

● Not much. I want affection, not equality. I put it to any man: Would you rather get a warm directive, such as, "Please, darling, take out the garbage," or a cold announcement, "Pay attention to the deal I negotiated today"?

FOR FRANCES SPATZ LEIGHTON, coauthor of "Dog Days at the White House"

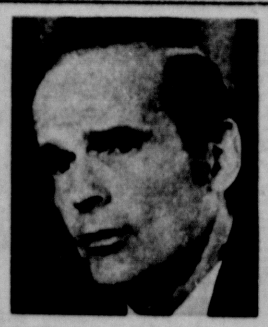
Does your new book, written with the presidential dog keeper, really say anything juicy about what went on in the White House?—S.L., Cleveland, Ohio

● Too much to mention here, but on prudishness, or lack of it, Truman and Nixon were on the prudish side, while LBJ and Kennedy even gloried in a display of nudity. LBJ loved to parade around without a stitch on among his male friends—including the dog keeper—and Kennedy went further—sitting around nude at poolside in mixed company.

FOR SHELLEY WINTERS

Who's your favorite author?—B.T.D., Ann Arbor, Mich.

● Agatha Christie. I've read all her books—at night. I can concentrate more on whodunits when I'm tucked in under the blankets. If I could have a sandwich at the same time, I'd be in heaven. But as I'm forever watching my weight, I just stick to reading.



FOR SEN. WILLIAM PROXMIRE (D—Wis.)

How much weight have you lost by jogging, and was that your primary reason for starting? Or were you tired of traffic jams?—Joy Hill, Huron, S.D.

● I've lost no weight running five miles a day, but I've been able to eat more without gaining. Avoiding traffic jams was a side benefit. The real advantages are: I feel much better, look healthier and save a few hundred dollars a year on transportation.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

I hear Bette Midler isn't nearly so popular offstage as she is onstage. True?—K. Denton, Newport, Ky.

● Not on the evidence we have. During the New York run of "Clams on the Half Shell," she ordered 70 picnic hampers from the Trattoria and Brasserie restaurants to be delivered to the theater between shows on weekends, as there was no time for the cast and crew to go out to dinner. When Alexis Smith visited Bette backstage after one show, her dressing room was crowded and Alexis didn't recognize Bette, with no makeup and her hair pulled back. "In fact, she was introducing herself to people," said Alexis, who told Bette she was leaving for a Florida club date. With that, Bette took her to a corner and passed on some valuable tips about club work, a rare thing for performers to do. They usually guard their "secrets" as closely as the Pentagon does.

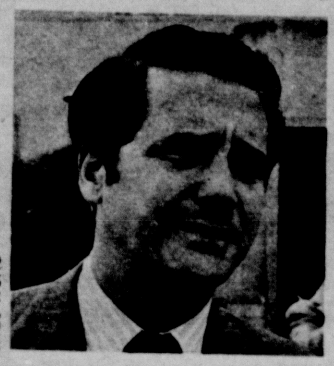
My First Days in Prison



Wide World

"A deep depression hit me so hard that even my physical movements became leaden. There is nothing in prison that can lift that depression. It simply gets worse. One man in the A and O dorm just sat in his chair, hour after hour, looking at nothing."

By Jeb Stuart Magruder

We arrived at Allenwood Prison during visiting hours that Monday, so they let my wife Gail wait in the main room while I was being photographed and fingerprinted. They took all my civilian clothes, checked out my personal effects and gave me my prison khakis. In a few days, I would get clothes that fit me better; until then I had to wear what was available. The unpressed shirt was almost coming apart, and the pants, also unpressed, just made it down to my shins. The black-leather shoes were ripped open at the sides, showing my new, thin, white-cotton socks that barely came to my ankles.

When I returned to the reception room to give Gail my civilian clothes, she looked stricken, and I thought perhaps it would have been better if we had said good-bye earlier. We mumbled a few words, but we both felt extremely awkward.

Finally, I said, "Look, honey, why don't you get in the car and start home?" Then I said something that seemed ridiculous: "I'll be seeing you soon." It would be almost a week before I saw her again, but old habits are strong. I said good-bye as if I'd be home for dinner.

A prisoner I later got to know quite well took me to one of the dorms. Ben was about 50, completely bald, an ex-cop, ex-lawyer and ex-alcoholic, who felt his life had been ruined. He was pretty sour about everything, and his glum outlook got to me.

There are eight dorms at Allenwood; I went to A and O—Assignment and Orientation—for new prisoners. It was a big room with about 50 bunks, separated by five-foot-high partitions. Each prisoner got a metal locker and a "school-desk" chair with a writing arm.

Finally, Ben said, "Well, here it is," and left me staring at my bunk. There were about 40 men in the room, and a few of them came over to say hello. One of them, Bob, a doctor from Philadelphia, had come to Allenwood 23 days earlier. He was very nice and tried to be helpful, in spite of the fact that he was having a very hard time himself. He was in for Medicare fraud.

Wide World

Jeb Stuart Magruder and his wife Gail. Magruder, a former aide to President Nixon, served seven months in prison for his role in the Watergate cover-up.

The prisoners are counted six times a day at Allenwood—three times during waking hours and three times at night. Right after the 4 p.m. count, Bud (Egil) Krogh showed up. He held out his hand. "Good to have you here, Jeb," he said, "if it can be good to be here." I laughed. I already knew what he meant: Seeing someone familiar was a good feeling.

Bud had been sentenced to six months and had served four. He was scheduled to leave the next day to spend the rest of his term at the "safe house" at Fort Holabird in Baltimore.

Bud was very helpful. He introduced me to a few prisoners, and one, Ron, said he would help me learn the ropes. Bud also took me to the commissary so I could pick up toothpaste and other things I might need. The money I had put in my commissary account would take about five days to be processed, so Bud let me use his money. He even bought me a transistor radio, a really welcome gift.

Bud got me sneakers in case I wanted to jog, and he gave me his sweatshirts, which he wouldn't need at Holabird. I have back trouble, and I asked him how to get a bed board. "No problem," Bud said, "lots of beds have them." He looked in empty beds until he found one for me.

"Why don't we have dinner together?" Bud said—and it sounded almost as if we were back in Washington, discussing business over a meal.

"Fine," I said. Like every new prisoner I had a feeling of unreality about everything, almost like dreaming. I kept expecting to wake up.

We walked down to the mess hall, which was a big room with orange-and-yellow plastic tables and chairs. Tall windows looked out on the surrounding hills, and the room wouldn't have been half bad if it weren't in a prison.

They served cafeteria style, usually pork in a gravy or sauce. We got eggs for breakfast about twice a week; the rest of the time it was creamed chipped beef or something. There was always plenty of food, but it didn't encourage any appetites.

I didn't eat at all that first evening, but I can't blame the food. I just wasn't all there. Probably I was in a mild state of shock, as most new prisoners are.

Bud and I sat at a table with two former anti-war demonstrators. One, a Presbyterian minister, was in for burning down an ROTC building in Hawaii. The other, in his early twenties, was a draft resister. They were very friendly and later told me I had communicated clearly but that my eyes had seemed glazed. Only when the minister said he was a Williams grad, like me, did I show any animation.

It was still light after dinner, and Bud and I walked to a church about a mile and a half away. He told me a lot about how the prison worked, which I would appreciate in the days ahead. He told me which prisoners would give me straight answers and which would try to con me—I didn't think I had anything worth conning, but Bud said some of the men would think my government background could get them a pardon. (And sure enough, it happened! Someone did ask me for help.)

Having Bud there that first day made me feel someone was looking out for me, and that was a real comfort. Then Bud said something disturbing.

"Jeb, you may be here for a pretty long time."

"Sure," I said. "But ten months isn't forever."

"It'll be more like 16 or 18 months—at least," he said.

I found out later that most prisoners take a dim view of everything. They expect the worst. Parole is the subject they talk about most, and their attitude is tough on new prisoners. "What's your sentence?" is the first thing they ask, and when a new man says he expects to get paroled, the answer usually is, "You'll never be out by then!" Perhaps their own disappointment becomes a little less painful when they see another man's hopes fade. But Bud

Banana Breeze. The shortcut cream pie.

Here's a luscious pie that's easy. Almost as easy as peeling a Dole banana. That's because Eagle Brand lets you make the creamy filling without any cooking. And Kellogg's lets you make a golden crust without any baking. Try it. It's just one delicious shortcut after another.

Banana Breeze Pie
(Makes one 9-inch pie.)

- ⅓ cup regular margarine or butter, melted
- ¼ cup sugar
- ½ tsp. cinnamon, optional
- 1 cup Kellogg's® Corn Flake Crumbs
- 1 pkg. (8-oz.) cream cheese, softened
- 1 can Eagle® Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk* (not evaporated milk)
- ⅓ cup bottled lemon juice, measured accurately
- 1 tsp. vanilla extract
- 5 medium-size Dole® bananas
- 2 tablespoons bottled lemon juice

*Magnolia® or Dime® Brands may be used.

In small pan over low heat, stir margarine, sugar and cinnamon 'til bubbles form. Remove from heat. Mix in crumbs. Press mixture evenly in 9" pie pan to form crust. Chill.

Beat cream cheese 'til fluffy. Blend in sweetened condensed milk. Add ⅓ cup lemon juice and vanilla. Stir 'til thickened.

Line crust with three sliced bananas. Turn filling into crust. Refrigerate 2-3 hours or 'til firm. Cut two bananas into thin slices; dip slices in remaining lemon juice. Top pie with slices.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Do You Know the Art of Handling Bores?

True or False: There is no easy way to discourage the bore who insists on regaling you with the endless details of his or her latest operation or medical problems. (See number 3)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. When you meet a person at a gathering who tries to dominate the conversation, it's easy to cut him off at the ankles, if you know how.

2. There is a self-righteous do-gooder variety of bore who takes it upon himself to lecture you "for your own good" on what you should or shouldn't do, etc. There is no way to shut him up that isn't illegal in most states.

3. There is no easy way to discourage the bore who insists on regaling you with the endless details of his or her latest operation or medical problems.

4. A type of bore that almost everyone is familiar with is the character who bends your ear about the things his children have done. There's little you can do except stand there until your eyeballs are glazed and your jaw muscles stiff from stifled yawns.

5. One way to cure a person of being a bore is to encourage him to travel. It will broaden his knowledge and viewpoint, making him a much more interesting person.

ANSWERS

1. True. Studies show that the best psychology is to gang up on him simply by getting your friends to start conversations among themselves whenever the bore begins to hold forth. This technique has a devastating effect on the bore, and is guaranteed to make him wish he were somewhere else—a wish that you and your friends will no doubt join in.

2. False. All it takes to discourage this type of bore is the old verbal one-two. It works like this: When he's completed his little lecture, beam at him appreciatively. "You know, Jack," you tell him, "I feel like a new man after listening to you." And while he's groping for a modest way to accept the compliment, you add reflectively, "But I think I liked the old one better." Then walk away, leaving him to wipe the egg off his face. He isn't likely to come back for more.

3. False. You simply turn the tables, making the bore as uncomfortable as he (or she) makes you. As soon as he pauses for breath, you interrupt with, "That reminds me of the time I thought my canary was pregnant. But it turned out one of the bird seeds she'd swallowed had sprouted and was starting to grow. . . ." This type of treatment is likely to have such an effect on the bore that he (or she) may even spare his doctor an ever-lengthening list of symptoms.

4. False. You can stop this bragging bore dead in his tracks by employing a reverse-twist tactic. Start telling him the truth about your own children: how obstreperous they are on occasion, how they sometimes have you on the verge of climbing the walls. This will create an about-face effect in the other person, and instead of continuing to bore you with his tiresome bragging, he'll try to outdo you in retailing some of the more mischievous misadventures of his own offspring. He may not be quiet, but at least his conversation will be a lot more interesting.

5. False. As one connoisseur of both bores and travel has succinctly noted: "Travel never made a bore interesting; it only makes for a well-traveled bore."

Why I've Surrendered My Home, My Heart, My Life, to Animals

Ellen Graham

"I can never be depressed for long in my house," says Doris Day, "not with my dogs around."

"I don't believe in sending dogs to school. . . . I don't believe in having them do tricks for the amusement of their owners. People don't ask their children to do tricks before they are fed, so why ask that of their pets?"

By Doris Day
Especially for FAMILY WEEKLY

Whether one admits it or not, I guess every one of us is prejudiced in one way or another. In my case, it's dogs, cats—and just all animals. I love them. They are as pure and innocent as children. Unfortunately, children grow up. Animals don't. If only people were more like animals, how much easier, how much better life would be. And how much we can learn from them! Patience. And love. You can step on a dog's foot accidentally, he'll cry out, then come back to you and kiss you to show it is all right. Their love is unbelievable.

And loyalty. No matter how much a dog is mistreated, it will show loyalty. There was a case where a mailman found a Weimaraner tied beneath a house. It couldn't move. Skin and bones, down to 30 pounds. Months later, during the court hearing, the dog went up to the man responsible and licked his hand. That man should have gone to jail, but he didn't. That's what I think is wrong with the law.

I can never be depressed for long in my house, not with my dogs around. When I awaken with a heavy feeling, sometimes not even knowing why, it only lasts till my four-legged kids jump on my bed with their ball and romp around with unbounded joy. How can I stay depressed?

And yet, with all the joy, the pleasure, the loyalty and affection that dogs give us, so many people mistreat them. It was for this reason that I got deeply involved with the plight of dogs in my community.

It started when I was doing my television show back in '69 or '70. I joined an organization called Actors and Others for Animals. It was founded by Diana and Richard Basehart, and I first heard about it when Diana invited me to a bazaar for unwanted dogs. Would I come and bring something to be auctioned off, and call friends of mine to attend as well? I did.

A short time later I heard of a kennel where animals were so mistreated that just thinking about it brought tears to my eyes. That night I went out with the ABC news team to see for myself what was going on. We cut the wire fence to get to the animals. It was unbelievable what we found. Most of them were dead. The rest were starving. They were actually eating each other. Speak of man's inhumanity to man! Man's inhumanity to animals is worse because they are at our mercy. I won't forget that day as long as I live. After that I could no longer stand by idly. I had to get involved.

Incidentally, would you believe that the woman who ran the kennel got off with just an admonishment and an order never to run another kennel? But I feel sure that someplace, under some other name, she's running another kennel. People like that should not be let off. They should be in jail.

Since that fateful day, animals have played an increasingly important part in my life. As far as I'm concerned, the house I live in isn't my house, it's our house. My animals have the run of it.

I've learned to furnish it in a nice but practical way, to make it easier on myself. My couches are slip-covered and the covers are washable. I have wood floors in the dining room, with area rugs. I'm going to take the rug out of my bedroom and put in a tile floor with throw rugs. They'll be washable too, so that's no big deal. I know people who won't allow their dogs in the house because they are afraid they'll mess it up. So the animals are kept outside and have no feeling of being part of the family, of belonging. Others don't like their dogs in the yard because they dig holes, so they pen them off somewhere. What's a hole? It can be filled in and the grass will grow back fast enough.

I don't believe in sending dogs to school, either. First of all, dogs respond to love. Secondly, I don't believe in having them do tricks for the amusement of their owners. People don't ask their children to do tricks before they are fed, so why ask that of their pets?

I am always amazed that the wealthiest neighborhoods are the worst with animals. Beverly Hills—where I live—is a very good example. Would you believe that Beverly Hills has no animal shelters? If an animal gets picked up, it has to be driven miles away to a Jefferson Boulevard shelter—by which time it could be dead.

My biggest peeve is with people who leave dogs in cars. If the windows are down, the dogs might be stolen. If the windows are up, the dogs can suffocate, particularly in the summer heat, even if there is a crack left for air. If I see a car with a dog trapped like that, I break in and stay with the car until the people return. So far this hasn't gotten me into trouble. If they want to take me to court, let them try. They'll have their match!

Another peeve is about gates that are left open because nobody cares enough to close them. The animals get out, get run over or run away.

When I find a pet, I make a point of trying to get it back to its owner. Many times I've walked around a neighborhood for hours, knocking on all the doors, asking if anyone owns the dog or cat or has seen it around before.

If I can't find the owner, I'll scan the newspapers to see if anyone has advertised a lost dog. If not, I advertise I've found one and board it at the Holiday Shelter, with which Actors and Others for Animals has an arrangement. Here the animals are given medical attention, spayed or neutered, given their shots, and looked after until we find homes for them. We do not just hand them out indiscriminately. Any future owners are investigated as carefully as if they were applying to join the civil service.

"I am always surprised how many people think that pedigrees are the most desirable dogs. When I am asked about it, I invariably answer, 'Are you a pedigree? Are any of us?' "

I am always surprised how many people think that pedigrees are the most desirable dogs. It's like having a certain car or living on a certain street. A status symbol. When I am asked about it, I invariably answer, "Are you a pedigree? Are any of us? We're all mixed up, aren't we?" Also, people usually don't want older dogs. They are much harder to place. I think that's strange because they would be so perfect for couples who are of an age where they can't walk too much or too fast. Older dogs aren't boisterous and don't need as much exercise. It's nonsense to say they are too set in their ways. Contrary to people, dogs will adapt to humans at any age. Older dogs are ideal for older people.

A lot of people are afraid it costs too much to keep an animal because food is so expensive. But they don't just need canned food. I cook special things for my pets. Two of them are heart patients anyway, so they have to have a special diet. Too many people think all they have to do is dump a can of dog food in a bowl. I give mine scrambled eggs twice a week, low-fat cottage cheese every day, grated carrots, ground meat with soybean, brown rice, barley, a little fresh garlic, squash, whatever vegetables we have on hand, sesame-seed oil, wheat-germ oil and a bit of kibble.

Animals have changed my life in many ways. I was never terribly anxious to do films abroad. Now I'm even less anxious! Even if a beautiful script were offered to me, I wouldn't want to leave my pets for that long a time.

Even when I go away on brief trips, I never, never put them in a kennel to be looked after. Animals don't know you are coming back. They can die of grief because you've left them. They don't know your plans. I believe you should keep them in a place that has your scent, in their own surroundings.

Today I'm chairman of the board of Actors and Others for Animals. Because people know me, I can be helpful with publicity and promotion and raising money. We hold an animal bazaar once a year and we give benefit premieres. (Not long ago we sponsored the movie "Benji" in Los Angeles. All the proceeds went to our group.)

It's nice to know that our group is becoming known internationally. We get donations from all over the world, and presents. Not long ago someone sent me a dachshund—one of those elongated ones made out of cloth. On one side of it was written: "To the Dogcatcher of Beverly Hills." It was the greatest compliment I could have asked for.

was just preparing me for the hard truth about parole.

When a person enters prison, his most important question is, "When am I going to get out?" Before I entered, I expected to qualify for release in ten months. I was braced for those ten months, and so was Gail. But parole isn't an automatic procedure, and a prisoner isn't automatically eligible for release when his minimum sentence has been served. Parole boards are autonomous, and they have their own ideas about how long a man should serve. They rarely grant parole when a prisoner first becomes eligible. In a sense they try him all over again and impose their own concept of his debt to society. Bud, with his six-month sentence, didn't have to go to the parole board. But most prisoners experience the same disappointment I felt.

By the time I got back to my dorm I was very discouraged. On the outside, months, even years, had passed quickly. But inside prison, time moves unbelievably slowly. A day is a very long time indeed; a week is forever.

Bob, the Philadelphia doctor, had the bunk across from mine and he came over to talk. Prison had been an even greater shock to him than to me —first, because he didn't expect to be convicted, and second, because he was locked up immediately after he was sentenced. At least Gail, our children and I had some time to accept the idea, to strengthen ourselves for the separation. Bob worried a lot about his family, as most of the prisoners did if they had families. Many did not, at least not any more. As I learned later, that was one reason why Ben, the fellow who showed me to my bunk, was so sure his life was ruined. His wife had divorced him and taken custody of their two children—it was a familiar story in prison.

When I thought about my family that first night, I felt a growing guilt, not only for what I had done, but for its painful consequences for Gail and the children. It may seem absurd, but until then I didn't really understand how directly my family was affected by my actions. When that hit me, it hurt.

At 10 p.m. another count was taken, and by 10:30, lights were out and I was in bed. I had trouble getting to sleep. I wasn't used to sleeping in a room with so many people, and the noise level was high. There was a TV room in the building and the late-show watchers were always walking in and out of the dorm. And with 40 to 50 people in one room, there were about 25 conversations going at the same time, including some angry arguments. And then there was the mumbling and restless tossing of those who, like me, were having trouble sleeping.

Finally I fell asleep. Three or four times I woke up and thought for an instant I was home in bed. Then I realized where I was and had a terrible feeling of letdown that was to be repeated again and again.

The next morning I saw Bud Krogh for a few minutes before he left. With Bud gone, the full impact of prison came down on me. A deep depression hit me so hard that even my physical movements became leaden. From what I was to observe, the other prisoners all felt the same way. And there is nothing in prison that can lift that depression. It simply gets worse One man in the A and O dorm just sat in his chair, hour after hour, looking at nothing. Sometimes he read, sometimes he wrote, but only for a few minutes at a time. Then he'd go back to staring.

I had read a theory, I don't remember where, that most men can survive the corrosive effects of prison life for about six months. After that it's downhill unless a man can find enough inner resources to sustain him. For most of my life, whenever I found myself in a situation that wasn't favorable, I either got out or found something worthwhile that would make the same situation work. In prison that's impossible. Confinement makes you feel completely helpless. You can't change your situation, nor are you likely to find anything positive in it. Whatever help a man gets has to come from inside himself.

If I had gone to prison 14 months earlier, I don't think I would have had the kind of inner strength I needed. During the time the Watergate story was coming out, I had been under such severe pressure that my family life had almost come apart without my realizing it. Then came the relief of the pressure finally being over—and in the 14 months between my pleading guilty and my being sentenced to prison, I had had time to rebuild my family relationships and my reservoir of strength for the ordeal ahead of me. Before those 14 months, my spiritual resources had been about an inch deep. Now they were much deeper.

I used to think that when a person had strong faith, it kept him out of trouble. Now I knew better. God had become very real to me, and because I knew more about Him, I understood that He wasn't going to make my problems go away. Nor was He going to spare me any new ones. I not only knew that I had to work out my own problems, but I tried to do what I could to help some of my fellow prisoners with theirs. The difference was that I knew God would help me.

Is your cigarette less than More?

If it isn't More, it's less than More. Because More is the first 120mm cigarette. It's More in every way except price.

More has more style. It has more flavor. It has more. Over 50% more puffs than a 100mm cigarette. Yet More doesn't cost more.

And what's more, More comes in both regular and menthol. They're both long, lean and burnished brown. Regular More delivers rich tobacco flavor while More Menthol packs a cooling blast. Puff after puff after puff.

You'll find that More and More Menthol smoke slower and draw easy for more enjoyment. They're more flavorful. Yet they're surprisingly mild.

More and More Menthol. They sit neat in your hand like they were made for it and fit your face like they found a home.

Why settle for less?

WHEN WERE YOU LAST REALLY FIT?

AN EXPERT TELLS YOU HOW TO GET BACK IN SHAPE.

Even if you're not particularly interested in building he-man muscles, you owe it to yourself to keep your body fit. It's a sad fact of today's life that many men ignore this point and end up regretting it when they find they've become "old men" long before their time. Thanks to modern exercising techniques, "keeping fit" is now easier than ever. John Texier, Mr. France and leading fitness specialist tells you how.

Q. What does fitness mean?

A. For normally healthy people, fitness is a simple matter of maintaining muscle tone through exercise. In other words—using your muscles often enough and hard enough to keep them healthy and trim.

Q. How does lack of fitness show up?

A. The answer depends on how old you are. If you're still in your teens or early twenties, it's largely a matter of physical development. Young men with pipe-stem arms, caved-in chests, drooping shoulders or bird-like legs aren't fit. When you're a little older the first signs are usually a roll of fat around the middle and a lack of pep and energy. After 40, the whole body tends to become flabby.

Q. Can sports keep me fit?

A. Yes, indeed, if practiced regularly and for long enough periods. Swimming, jogging, gymnastics, tennis, handball, squash, skiing can all help keep you in top condition provided you practice the sport for at least an hour three or four days a week—every week.

Q. Isn't there an easier way?

A. Yes, there's an outstanding home training method which I use and recommend. It's fast, easy and guaranteed to give results.

Q. What's it called?

A. Bullworker training. It's based on Isometric techniques which have been proven to increase strength three times faster than sports or conventional calisthenics. In my opinion, it's the most advanced training system on the market today.

Q. How long does it take?

A. The 7-exercise introductory program requires only 70 seconds of exercise per day. The complete advanced training program takes about 5 minutes.

Q. When do the results start?

A. Right from the very first day. The Bullworker is fitted with a built-in measuring device which shows you exactly how much progress you make every day. And the results can be very impressive—up to 4% more strength per week, up to a 50% improvement in the first three months. I've seen many men go on to double and even triple their strength.

Q. How long does it take to see visible results?

A. From 10 days to three weeks depending on how well you train and how regularly. Each new week brings even more impressive results.

Q. But it's hard work, isn't it?

A. Not at all. The whole point of Isometrics is that by "exercising" for only 7 seconds at a time, you avoid the excess muscle strain and fatigue of "crash" training programs which often do more harm than good. Bullworker training is gauged to each user's personal potential.

Q. Is there an age limit?

A. Generally speaking, men between 15 and 65 in good general health can expect to benefit from fitness and strength building training. Young men should use Bullworker to improve their muscular development: broad, powerful shoulders—rippling biceps—a deep, manly chest tapering down to a slim waist and hips supported by muscular, contoured thighs and calves.

Men in their thirties should use Bullworker to maintain peak physical form and for toning-up the muscles of their abdomen, chest, shoulders and upper arms. After 2 or 3 weeks you'll probably see muscles you didn't even know you had.

From 45 on, Bullworker should be used to regain and maintain a youthful vigorous body that belies the passing years. I've seen lots of Bullworker users in their fifties with more energy, power, and vigor than many younger men.

Q. How can I find out more about the Bullworker and perhaps actually try it out?

A. I understand that the American distributor is now offering the Bullworker on a two-week free home trial basis in order to give as many men as possible a chance to prove to themselves what an outstanding fitness trainer it is. If you're interested in getting back into shape fast, I recommend you contact the distributor for full details.

John Frelin shows how he increased his biceps by 2", filled out his chest by 4", his thighs by 1¼" in just a few weeks of Bullworker training.

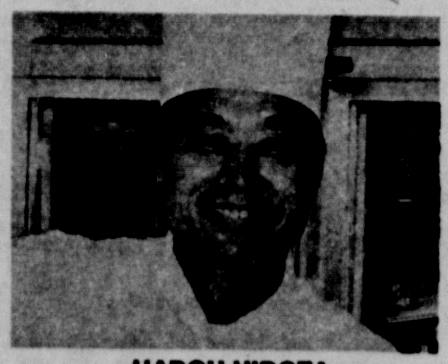
MAYOR RICHARD DALEY
A political paradox

What's Mayor Daley really like? "Like Chicago itself, the man who has set the U.S. record for serving as a big city mayor is enigmatic. There are some who view Daley as a man whose blood flows through arteries of refrigerated granite. This would seem to be true if one considered only the moments when he has coldly spurned someone who has displeased him or the times when he has petulantly turned icy and imperious. . . . Nonresident writers have not infrequently tried to run him down and exhibit their prize, but the chase leads over a slippery landscape, and it is with an impudent Irish smile that Daley always seems to escape them. How could it be otherwise, when those of us who think we know him and understand the chronology of his rise to power are never quite certain what manner of man he is?" From "Clout: Mayor Daley and His City," by Len O'Connor (Regnery, $10).



HAROU HIROTA
Kamikaze who lived

The shame of his survival: In 1945, during the Battle of Okinawa, "suicide pilot" Harou Hirota was on a collision course with an American destroyer—it was to have been his last mission. But death never came. "I remember hitting the water and going very far under. I must have been unconscious for some time," Hirota recalled for FAMILY WEEKLY. Hirota remembers that he recoiled in shame when he awoke aboard an American destroyer. "I could not believe I had survived. I had felt lucky to have been chosen as a Kamikaze pilot, and at that moment I was just grateful that I had no family aside from an uncle; I didn't have to share my shame." After his remarkable survival, Hirota, who spoke English, was put to work as a service boy in the ship's mess hall. "There I learned to 'bulk-cook' in the American style, and this knowledge has been useful to me ever since," he said. Today Hirota is a chef in the Key Bridge Marriott Hotel in Washington, D.C.

ON TV GAME SHOWS

TV is full of games today,
A fact that is for certain.
Contestants guess what's in the box

May win a cruise to Bali,
Or dream and scream and hope and pray—
And then get zonked, by golly!
